TAFT ACTS TO AVERT BIG COAL MINE WAR

President Will Confer With Mitchell Over Threatened Strike to Prepare for Any Emergency

CONCORD, N. H., March 19.—President Taft in a special interview given the AMERICAN today declared that he had wired John Mitchell, the noted labor leader, asking Mr. Mitchell to meet him at Washington in the immediate future to discuss questions relating to the threaten coal strike.

Yes, I have asked Mr. Mitchell to meet me at Washington and go over the situation in the coal fields, President Taft said in response to a question put to him by an AMERICAN representative. But, in no sense do I anticipate intervention to avert the strike said to be pending.

I not only have asked Mr. Mitchell to meet me so that I may be fully informed upon conditions in the coal fields in case a strike does occur, but have also asked a number of prominent people in different walks of life to give me the same information.

The Commissioner of Labor and the Commissioner of Immigratoin both are working with me, so that I may be prepared for any emergency. I want all the facts dealing with the mining of coal, its being marketed, the labor conditions of the men, as well as a knowledge of all other conditions surrounding its production in the zone where the strike threatens.

It would be deplorable were we to have a repetition of the great coal strike of a few years ago. But the steps I am taking are for information, and should not be construed to mean that I am committed to any policy of intervention should the threatened strike in the coal fields actually come in the future.

COAL STRIKE MIGHT SERIOUSLY CRIPPLE THE AMERICAN NAVY

WASHINGTON, March 19.—Fear that the threatened world-wide coal strike may seriously interfere with the operation of United States battleships at a time when their services might be urgently needed, has induced the officials of the Navy Department to hold several conferences with the presidents of the coal companies from which the government buys its coal.

Following the return of Secretary of the Navy Meyer to the city, the data compiled by the department on the subject will be placed in his possession, and he, in turn, will place the matter in the hands of President Taft.

The crisis in China, the contemplated manoeuvres to take place off the Chesapeake capes next month and the possibility of warships in other quarters in the event of international complications makes it absolutely necessary that the government be prepared to withstand a long strike. The present supply of the navy's supply are the Pocohontas, the Red River and the George's Creek coal fields.

The government has contracts with all these companies which under ordinary circumstances would not expire for a year but there is an emergency clause which gives the operators the privilege of cancelling the contract any time a strike takes place.

TESTIFIES AGAINST CHELSEA OFFICIALS

The hearing before Mayor James H. Malone of Chelsea on the Mayor's charges against License Commissioners Alexander Leslie and Raymond Alley was resumed today. Patrolman Cornelius Dineen corroborated the statements of Frank McCarthy, liquor officer, who testified few saloons lined up to the provisions of their licenses. "Chief Shannon and the License Commissioners knew of the violation of the law because I have seen them at various times inspecting the saloons," said the policeman.

MAN WHO CRITICISED MONEY TRUST QUITS

NEW YORK, March 19.—Arthur E. Stilwell, president and promoter of the new Kansas City, Mexico & Orient railroad, who accused the "Money Trust" of being responsible for the recent receivership of that property, has written a letter of resignation and deposited it with a committee of bondholders headed by Samuel Untermyer. It will be accepted, it is said, when the committee had ready a plan of reorganization.

Church Deacon of 74 Takes a Dorchester Bride, 74; Goes West

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Blair Will Take Greeley's Advice, and "Grow Up with the Country."

Isaac Blair of Winthrop, senior deacon for years at the Clarendon Street Baptist Church, will be married tonight to Mrs. Minerva Cox of Dorchester. Both are nearly seventy-five years old and it will be the second marriage for both. Rev. James A. Francis, pastor of the church, will perform the ceremony at his home, No. 61 St. Botolph street, at 5 o'clock.

The couple are well known in church circles, having been connected with the Clarendon street church for years. The courtship is of less than five months' duration.

Mr. Blair is a contractor and builder.

When he was asked about his wedding he said over the telephone:

"Yes, I am going to get married and we are going into the great Northwest to grow up with the country on a big fruit farm."

"Will you give more particulars about this wedding?"

"No, it's our affair and no one else's."

"When do you leave for the West?"

"That's a secret."

"How long have you known your bride?"

"Never mind, much obliged, goodbye."

Richeson May Die Two Months From Today

Defence Completing Plans for Fight for Commutation of His Sentence.

On May 19, two months from today, Warden Bridges of the State prison in Charlestown may carry out the execution of Clarence W. T. Richeson, former pastor of the Immanuel Baptist Church of Cambridge, for the murder of Avis W. Linnell.

The visit to Boston of Richeson's brother on Sunday and activities in the camp of the defence indicate that final preparations are in progress for the filing of the petition for the commutation of the sentence.

Attorney John L. Lee of Virginia will come to Boston early in April and by that time Attorney William A. Morse will have the plea for clemency ready for the Governor and Council.

DEFEND PACKERS BY QUOTING THE WORDS OF TAFT

CHICAGO, March 19.—Quoting from an address by President Taft, Attorney George T. Buckingham today began the defence of the ten "Kings of Provisions" on trial here for criminal violation of the anti-trust laws. The argument begun by Buckingham is the first word in defence of the packers that has been uttered since the trial began, December 4, and evidence in their behalf was submitted. He quoted from speeches of the President in support of his contention that the packers had committed no crime in adopting selling methods in arriving at the initial cost of purchasing and slaughtering.

LONGSHOREMEN JUST MISS A SEA VOYAGE

Six longshoremen were much surprised aboard the White Star liner Megantic when the steamer sailed away today for Europe. The men, who had been at work in the hold, went on deck just after the gang plank had been pulled in. There was a good deal of discussion, but one man set an example by going hand over hand on the hawser to the wharf, and the five others followed. The Megantic sailed with 161 saloon passengers, fifty second cabin and 100 steerage.

WHY FOSS WAS NOT AT BANQUET

Governor Felt Slighted Because of Position Given Him in List of Speakers.

Dudley M. Holman, secretary to Governor Foss, today confirmed the story published in the morning papers that the absence of Governor Foss from the dinner of the Charitable Irish Society at the Hotel Somerset last night was due to his feeling slighted at his position on the program of speakers.

Governor Foss refused to discuss the matter today. It is known, however, that the Governor as a representative of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts figures he was slighted. His name was fifth on the list of speakers. The order of speakers was as follows: President William H. Taft, Cardinal O'Connell, J. I. C. Clark of New York, Denis A. McCarthy, who read a poem, and Governor Foss.

The Governor, it is said, believed his name as representing the Commonwealth, should have followed that of the President. The list was announced in advance, the Governor was told and stayed away.

The story as published in the Boston Globe today is as follows:

A place at the head table had been reserved for the Governor.

The Governor was to have sat at the left of the presiding officer, President Lane, while on President Lane's right were President Taft and Cardinal O'Connell.

The printed program called for an address from Governor Foss in response to the toast, "The Commonwealth," and this toast came fifth on the list. The first toast was "The United States of America," by President Taft, and this was followed by the toast, "Civil and Religious Liberty," by Cardinal O'Connell.

No explanation of the Governor's absence was given at the dinner, but it was learned that the Governor's absence was intentional and that he refrained from appearing at the dinner because he felt that the State was not accorded its proper place and that he felt the dignity of the Commonwealth required that its representative should speak before the representative of any foreign or ecclesiastical body.

The trouble had been brewing all day, so it developed, and efforts were made to placate the Governor, and to persuade him that the State, as represented by President Taft, took precedence over the church. But the Governor could not see it that way and he concluded to remain away from the dinner, all efforts to change the order of speaking having failed.

CHARGE MISUSE OF FUNDS IN QUINCY

Charges of misappropriation of funds, loose business methods and inadequate protection of the city's money were made by a special committee on finance at a meeting of the Quincy City Council last evening. The report contained recommendation of an entirely new system in contracting bills.

The report is only preliminary. The council also has authorized the Mayor to appoint an advisory board of five citizens for the equalization of taxes, real and personal. The finance committee reported against paying a $620 bill for an auto purchased by Mayor Stone for the chief of the fire department.

TAKES BOY HE RAN OVER TO HOSPITAL

Frederick Devell, eight years old, while crossing Columbus avenue at Dartmouth street today, was run down by an automobile owned by the Edison Illuminating Company. The driver of the car, John Hurley, of No. 11 Auburn street, stopped his car, picked up the boy and took him to the City Hospital. It was found that the boy was badly bruised but the doctors said that his injuries were not serious. The little fellow lives at No. 27 Berwick park.

COUNTESS WARWICK ILL IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, March 19.—The Countess of Warwick, who had accepted an invitation to attend the reception of the Twilight Club of the National Arts Club, was too ill to do so. The committee which went to Brooklyn to bring her to the reception came back with the report that her illness was not expected to be serious, but it would be quite impossible for her to attend their meeting.

BISHOP OF RICHMOND FORMALLY INDUCTED

RICHMOND, Va., March 19.—With more than thirty bishops in attendance, the Rt. Rev. D. J. O'Connell, newly appointed bishop of the Roman Catholic diocese of Richmond, was inducted into office today. Shoe Machine Men Plead Not Guilty

Defendants Held in $10,000 Bail After Waiving Reading of the Indictment.

The five defendants in the criminal cases against the United Shoe Machinery Company were today arraigned before Judge Dodge in the United States District Court, under one count of indictment, charging monopoly, through a system of leases on patents, and in violation of the Sherman law. They each waived reading of the indictment, pleaded not guilty, and were held in $10,000 bail.

The five defendants are Sidney W. Winslow, president of the company, and E. P. Hurd, E. P. Howe, William Barbour and George W. Brown, directors.

Attorneys Charles F. Choate, Henry F. Hurlburt and Robert B. Jones appeared for the defendants, and United States District Attorney Asa P. French, with Assistant United States Attorney-General William S. Gregg, represented the government.

Before the pleas were entered, a motion was filed by the defendants for a rehearing on the demurrer to the indictment, which demurrer was quashed at the same time that demurrers against other counts in this and indictment number 113 were sustained by Judge Putnam.

Mr. French announced that the plea of the defendants to the arraignment would have no effect or prejudice upon a future changing of that plea, and that the proceedings went upon that reservation.

Special Assistant Attorney-General Gregg stated that an appeal from Judge Putnam's decision quashing certain counts of the indictment would be taken to the Supreme Court of the United States.

How a Young Westerner Secured the Hand of Pretty Girl of the Shoe City.

Allen Lonif, a young Idaho ranchman, bronzed and hearty, and armed with a convincing roll of greenbacks was married today in Lynn to Miss Florence Miles, a pretty salesgirl whom he courted by mail and had seen only once.

Lonif was nearly vanquished by that new law which demands that petition for marriage be filed and then a lapse of five days ensue before the license is granted. But Lonif's sincerity and honesty won the day, although he had to go before Judge Lummus in the District Court to get a special license.

"Wait five long days?" said the astonished and impatient Westerner. "What for? Want kind of matrimonial business is that? That ain't the way we daily on the plains when we set our heart. I don't propose to be sidetracked for any five days. I want Florence today, right away. I want to be spliced."

Applied to the Court.

And Lonif was married without the tulle veil, orange blossom and rice accompaniments by the Rev. Donald Gerrish, pastor of St. Paul's Methodist Church, to whose rectory he led Miss Miles, who wore a blue travelling gown and a hat of the latest Spring pattern.

The ranchman, with a sparkler on the third finger of his left hand, blew into the Shoe City yesterday and on time looking up his prospective bride, who was waiting for him at her home, No. 131 Union street. Then he applied for a license, and was told by Clerk Attwill about the five-day rule. It didn't take Allen Lonif long to "hit the trail" for Judge Lummus' court.

"You see, Judge," pleaded Lonif, "it's just this way. My time is valuable. Why let the grass grow under our feet? I love Flossie and she does me. I have ever since I first caught sight of her in Frisco, four years ago. I went to the coast to attend a convention. Flossie was visiting relatives in the city. We were introduced. Then we parted. She returned East and I went back to Boise City and do you know I couldn't stop thinking of her?

Leave for Honeymoon.

"I decided to write and got her address by writing to a relative. I wrote and she wrote often. I ain't strong in the penman line, anyway, I proposed in one of my letters and she accepted and then I wrote a week ago that I'd be on and have the knot tied. Here I am, all ready with Flossie, as ready as any bride, and the clerk tells us we have to wait five days.

"Is it because the Massachusetts law thinks I possibly can't support her? Look at that (showing a huge roll of bills), and I've got plenty more back home. Our tickets are bought. Everything is ready for our wedding tour to Atlantic City. What do you say, Judge? Do the wedding bells ring today? Thanks, Judge. My hand on it, and thanks, too, for your well wishes."

Fifteen minutes after Judge Lummus had instructed Clerk Donaghue to write an order to the City Clerk the Methodist minister had slipped on the ring and Mr. and Mrs. Lonif left Lynn for the first stretch of their honeymoon.

ROOSEVELT, TAFT AND FOSS GET PETITIONS

Draw Papers for Primaries Under the Law Just Passed. Many Candidates for Delegates Out.

The first nomination papers for President of the United States to be taken out under the new Massachusetts presidential preference primary law are for Theodore Roosevelt. The papers were drawn at the Secretary of State's office just before noon today.

At 1:40 p. m. a representative from the Massachusetts Taft headquarters took out nomination papers for President Taft.

At 2 p. m. nomination papers for Governor Foss as Democratic candidate for President were taken out at the office of the Secretary of State by Michael A. O'Leary, secretary of the Democratic State Committee. Mr. O'Leary also took out a batch of delegates' papers.

The Roosevelt State Committee also took out papers for delegates.

The honor of taking out the first presidential nomination papers went to Antonio Florentino, a fifteen-year-old messenger boy, who was sent to get the papers by Matthew Hale, chairman of the Massachusetts Roosevelt Committee.

New Law in Effect.

The new presidential preference primary law with the provision for the direct election of all delegates to the national conventions, which was enacted recently by the Legislature and signed by Governor Foss last Friday, went into operation today. The first step under the new law was drawing nomination papers by candidates or their representatives.

Representative William M. McMorrow of Ward 23, a Democrat, sponsor for the presidential primary bill, was the first to take out papers for district delegate.

Frank D. Ingram, Democratic candidate for Secretary of State last fall, was the first to take out nomination papers for delegate-at-large. Donahue was not given a place on the delegate-at-large slate adopted by the Democratic State Committee last Saturday.

The nominations papers must be signed by voters if candidates are to get their names on the ballot at primaries.

Herbert Boynton, Deputy Secretary of State, was in charge of the distribution of papers.

For Foss as President.

Candidates for delegate or alternate-at-large to the national convention must get 250 signatures on their papers. To get the name of a Presidential or Vice-Presidential candidate on the ballot, 1,000 names are necessary. Papers must be submitted for certification by March 30, on or before 5 o'clock, and all nomination papers must be filed with the Secretary of State on or before 5 o'clock on April 2.

Whoever knowingly subscribes falsely to a statement on a nomination paper shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than five days or by a fine not exceeding $50 or both, the law says.

Representative McMorrow announced he would run pledged to Eugene N. Foss for President on his first choice, and for "any progressive Democrat" on later ballots.

Former Representative Russell A. Wood of Cambridge took out papers for delegate-at-large pledged to Roosevelt.

Ex-Mayor Charles S. Baxter of Medford, and one of the best-known Republicans in this State, has definitely decided to become a candidate for delegate-at-large to the Republican National Convention on the Roosevelt ticket, according to a statement put out today by the Roosevelt committee. The other two Roosevelt men are George W. Coleman, the president of the Associated Advertising organizations in this country, and James P. Magenis.

FIRST PRIMARIES IN NORTH DAKOTA

BISMARCK, N. D., March 19.—Cold and stormy weather which prevailed in the western part of the State resulted in a lighter vote in today's first presidential preference primaries than was expected. The weather is believed to have favored Senator Robert M. La Follette, whose strength was conceded to be in the farming communities and La Follette's in the cities. The storm kept the country vote from the polls.

MITCHELL FOLLOWS WILEY'S FOOTSTEPS

WASHINGTON, March 19.—That Dr. Wiley's policies will have a champion in Dr. A. S. Mitchell, his successor on the board of food and drug inspection, was the declaration of the new member of the board today upon his arrival at the Bureau of Chemistry. Dr. Mitchell declared it would be his purpose to vigorously enforce the pure food laws.

"SOAP BOX" REPLY BY COL. ROOSEVELT

NEW YORK, March 19.—Colonel Roosevelt was asked how he liked President Taft's characterization of the preferential primary as a "soap box primary." He said:

"A soap box primary, eh? Well, if it's that, then we might as well abolish our whole elective system. I would not for myself style a 'soap box' method one that means the full expression of the will of the people. I don't think the people either will like to be styled as 'soap box voters.'"

"3D TERM CAESARISM," SAYS DR. SCHURMAN

NEW YORK, March 19.—Jacob Gould Schurman, president of Cornell University, in the current number of The Independent, makes the following statements on a third presidential term:

"Whoever votes for a third term, by necessary implication, votes for Caesarism.

"The main point is concealed under wretched sophistry and juggling with words.

"The restriction of the President to two terms at most is the fundamental safeguard of the republic. If our democratic institutions are to survive, if the rule of the people is not to be supplanted by Caesarism, the term of the chief executive must be rigidly limited either by law or custom."

MANCHESTER, N. H., March 19.—Speaking to fully 10,000 from a flag-draped stand in Railroad square in his first openair address of the 1912 campaign, President Taft today mentioned the name of Roosevelt for the first time in his speeches and the reference to the Colonel brought laughter and scattered cheers. Even the President smiled.

He delivered a ringing speech on progressive principles, which he declared, and his utterances were tickly punctuated with cheers.

Here is the reference to Roosevelt:

I want to give you a definition of a new term about which you have heard a lot lately. I refer to the term, "Progressive."

After we had abolished slavery our country began upon a nervous strain—a strain of getting money. We gave corporations and others too much. We gave away privileges that were too wide, and too valuable franchises.

By and by it came time to make a change. The people demanded it.

I WILL SAY THAT UNDER THE MISSIONARY WORK OF THEODORE ROOSEVELT THE CHANGE WAS BEGUN.

The crowd laughed and followed and a very few cheered. Finally the shrill became so marked that even the speaker smiled.

Hits at Roosevelt.

Later in his speech the President hit at Roosevelt when he said:

The progressive is not the one who, had he had a chance to progress, simply plumed himself as a progressive and accomplished little or nothing.

The crowd, quick to interpret this as another veiled allusion to Roosevelt, howled some more. Then Mr. Taft added:

But the men justly to be termed progressives are those who favored and put through progressive legislation.

In my early days, when I was a schoolboy, we had a maxim which ran, "Handsome is as handsome does."

If I had my way I would transpose this so that it would read, "Progressive is as Progressive does."

Now just look at the records of

SOCIETY GIRLS A TRAMP'S CREW

Three New York society girls and their chaperone, who shipped as members of the crew of the Barber line steamer Saranac, reached Boston today after a trip of 30,000 miles to Europe and the East Indies.

The Misses Louise and Frances Barber, daughters of W. H. Barber, millionaire ship owner; Miss Constance Brown and Mrs. Macintosh were the four who took the novel holiday. The girls shipped as nurses and stewardesses. Several members of the Chinese crew were ill and were cared for by the nurses.

The young women left New York on the Saranac on Oct. 26. They have visited Algiers, Port Said, Suez, Singapore, Manila, Cebu and other places.

The law does not permit tramp lines to carry passengers, and the girls were obliged to ship as members of the crew. The Saranac went out with case oil and brought back 10,000 bales of Manila hemp. Captain H. H. Armstrong is in command. The vessel attracted attention in the harbor, for the name is painted in Chinese characters on the bow.

CARDINAL VISITS BOSTON COLLEGE

Cardinal O'Connell made his first visit since his elevation, to Boston College this morning and was tendered a reception by President Gasson, the faculty and the student body. The main hall of the college, where the eminent alumnus was received, was beautifully decorated with flags and bunting. There was music by the college orchestra.

Address by Cardinal.

In his address of thanks for the warmth of his reception, the Cardinal expressed his heartfelt pleasure at being the guest of his Alma Mater. He said:

"It is a pleasant note to review the early successes which stimulated me to better work. During all my school-days I never spent a half hour below an 'A.' And I still possess the trophies of hard-fought battles whose field was the classroom. I am prouder of them now even than I was then, for they mean far more. I have no regrets over time lost during my student days. For them, as now, I loved work and it made me happy then as it has ever since.

"My life as a student in this institution was one long sunny day. I never had a professor here who was not as kind as a father. I never had a schoolmate here who was not an upright and honorable youth. From the day of my entrance I was a compeer for the scholarly honors, and I won more than my due share of the honors of them. Not in all the competition there was no antagonism. And my friends remain there, as now, among my best friends.

No Irish Heeps.

Healthy, sane, normal manhood—that was the natural product of our Alma Mater, then as now. And along with that the genuine kind of Catholicity which does not wear off by contact with life, but which with time grows more and more real until it becomes the very mainspring of life.

Sicut erat in principio et nunc et semper. Those are your traditions inherited in this college. Cherish them and absorb them. Win if you can, but be a man still if beaten, and have the manhood even to give your hand to the victor. Be straight and frank.—Irish Heeps belong elsewhere. Boston College never produced one.

And then be a conqueror, Catholic. There is not a man in Massachusetts who will not respect you for the courage of your honest convictions. Know your civic duties and exercise them. Know also your civic rights and demand them. Remember that the man of education has special responsibilities as a citizen. He ought never to follow or lead a mob. He must think, and then act in reason.

Cause of Eczema Now Explained

Eczema, Psoriasis and other skin troubles are caused by myriads of germs at work in the skin. Salves have been tried but have been proven worthless, for they only clog the pores and fail utterly to remove the real cause of the disease.

These germs can be destroyed only by a wash, and unless this is promptly done, they rapidly multiply, gnawing their way deep into the sensitive tissue. This is what causes that awful itch, and what seemed a mere rash may grow worse and develop into a loathsome and torturing skin disease with its years of misery.

Don't take any chances! Destroy the germs at the beginning of the trouble with that soothing and cleansing wash, the D.D.D. Prescription for Eczema.

A 25c bottle is enough to prove what D.D.D. will do.

Mayor Calls Brockton Men to Hunt Boy Mystery of Death in Brook Stirs City

SEARCHING FOR BODY OF FOUR-YEAR-OLD JOHN FORD

Child's Parents Nearly Frantic Since the Lad Was Drowned Last Thursday.

BROCKTON, March 19.—Mayor Harry C. Howard today issued a call to every citizen to join in the search for the body of four-year-old John J. Ford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah J. Ford of No. 12 Otis street, who disappeared last Thursday. The lad's fate has stirred the entire city and 500 citizens joined the police in the search.

Mr. Ford today received a telegram from New York, telling him his father died suddenly last night.

Mayor Howard said today:

"I intend to find Johnny Ford if it takes every man on the city's payroll. I'm going to exhaust every possible means in the search. We don't care what it costs, the boy's body must be found, if only to convince his parents and us that he was really drowned.

The boy last Thursday was seen to fall into Trout brook while playing along its edge. The brook is only four feet deep and ten feet wide, yet all efforts to find the body have failed.

Today it was planned to dynamite Mansfield pond, into which the brook empties, and to erect a dam at Porter pond, somewhere distance above the spot where the boy fell in, so as to drain the bed of the brook.

The mystery of the boy's disappearance has frustrated all parents and stirred Brockton as no occurrence since the Hall case, when a mother murdered and hid the bodies of her children.

At times there have been 10,000 people searching three miles along either side of Trout Brook. City Marshal M. H. Allen has promised Mrs. Ford she shall have her boy's body if it is possible.

The boy's father was paced along the brook for hours at a stretch, ever since the boy was drowned last Thursday. The mother remains at home, calling for the boy and sobbing piteously. During the search Mrs. Ford went to Marshal Allen and said: "Can you recover Johnny's body. This waiting for it is worse than the first news of the drowning. I must have his body."

"You shall have Johnny's body, Mrs. Ford, if I have to drain off the brook," said the marshal.

The boy fell into the brook near Otis street bridge. From that point the brook runs three miles to Salisbury River, which flows into Taunton River. The brook is about ten feet wide and four feet deep, but flows swiftly. Johnny was weighted by heavy boots. It is thought that the body is caught at the bed of the stream somewhere between the point where he fell in and the outlet of Salisbury River.

The West Bridgewater authorities have placed a fifteen-foot screen across the mouth of the brook at Salisbury River to catch the body if it is carried down. It is not believed that the body has been borne down into the Taunton River yet.

WIFE FINDS MAN DEAD.

Charles L. Curran, thirty-six years old, of No. 2 Farragut court, South Boston, was found dead in bed early today by his wife. A gas jet was open. Medical Examiner Meyrath said death was due to accidental asphyxiation.

Divorced Pastor Weds Parishioner

RENO, Nev., March 19.—The Rev. Samuel C. Weatherby, a former pastor of the Unitarian Church of Rockland, Mass., who resigned his ministry to secure a divorce here from his wife, Harriet, has been married in Los Angeles to Miss Norma Kelly, a member of Weatherby's Rockland congregation.

The marriage was performed by the Rev. E. Stanton Hodgin, pastor of the Los Angeles Presbyterian Church, a few hours after the arrival of Miss Kelly, who had hurried 3,000 miles across the continent to become her former pastor's bride.

Weatherby was married four years ago to his first wife. It was brought out in court here that she declared she would kill her husband because he was too attentive to certain young women members of his flock. On one occasion, said the minister, she became so enraged that she attacked him with a butcher knife, after throwing several dishes at his head.

After securing his divorce here Weatherby went to Los Angeles, where he has been teaching school. He was once pastor of a church in Barnesville, N. J.

MAINE DEMOCRATS IN CONVENTION TO PICK DELEGATES

AUGUSTA, Me., March 19.—The consensus of opinion here is that the national delegates to be chosen at the Democratic State convention, which began at 10:30 today in City Hall, will go to Baltimore in June unpledged and without instructions. Senator Johnson presided at the convention.

There appears to be no doubt that the delegates to the national convention to be chosen from the first district will be Irving M. Sleeper, South Berwick; Dr. H. A. Weymouth of Saco, and Stephen G. Perry of Portland.

Congressman Daniel J. McGillicuddy of Lewiston and A. S. Kimball of Norway are apparently the choice of the second district delegation, but Philip Howard of Rockland and John Montgomery of Camden are fighting for third place.

The third district delegates will probably be Governor Plaisted, Congressman Gould and W. R. Pattengall of Waterville.

Quarreling Pair Are Wedded Over Again

NORTH ADAMS, March 19.—Frank Pratt and his bride are safely married at last.

Pratt lives in Somersworth, Vt. His bride, who was Miss Myrtle Myers, lives in Pownal, Vt. They met in Massachusetts, at a place north of North Adams, where New York, Vermont and Massachusetts join.

On August 12, 1911, the two got a marriage license in Pownal, Vt., went across to Petersburg, N. Y., and were married by the Rev. Mr. Stevenson. But scarcely an hour after the marriage they quarrelled, and Pratt went away alone.

In January, Miss Myers found her marriage had not been valid, since a Vermont license was used in New York. A few weeks later Pratt returned and there was a reconciliation, and now the pair have been remarried—this time with a New York license—by the same pastor who officiated at the previous ceremony. Today they left Albany on their honeymoon.

The Ford

There are three kinds of guarantees:

Long term guarantees.
Short term guarantees.
Guarantees of genuineness.

The long term (guarantees for life) mean absolutely nothing as applied to automobiles, because the real lifetime of the car ends with the breaking of a vital part—just when the guarantee begins.

The short term guarantee (the kind they put on socks) means even less when applied to automobiles, because it is figured into the selling price, and the man who drives his car with due care is helping pay the manufacturer for the upkeep of the machine that the joy-rider bought.

The guarantee of genuineness—Henry Ford's guarantee—means that the car you buy is just as good a car as the 100,000 Fords that are now in use, will wear the way they wear, will give the service they give, will give the satisfaction they give. It means that the car you buy is a perfect piece of mechanism, proved in use. It is the guarantee of accomplishment.

REFUSE BARRE STRIKE TERMS

BARRE, Mass., March 19.—The demands of the strikers, presented to the mill owners today, were refused after a two hour conference. The mill owners are firm in their stand.

Members of the strike committee made public the new schedule of wages announced by the mill officials. The schedule, which would have gone into effect yesterday had the mills been in operation, is as follows:

FOR MEN
55 Hours' Work

Those receiving $3.50 or less advanced to	$4.00
Those receiving $3 advanced to	3.60
Those receiving $2 advanced to	2.35
Those receiving $1 advanced to	1.85

FOR WOMEN AND MINORS
54 Hours' Work

Those receiving $3.50 advanced to	$3.85
Those receiving $3.00 advanced to	3.30
Those receiving $2.50 advanced to	2.75

A reduction in the hours of work for the men to fifty-four hours, with pay for fifty-eight hours, is desired by the striking operatives. Under the new schedule women and minors receive a two-hour reduction in their working week, in accordance with the provisions of the new law, in addition to the wage increases noted.

As the railroad employes refused to run on the spur track from Barre Plains, because of the danger of violence, the mill men were compelled to cart wool a mile to the freight shed at Barre Plains. The superintendent of the Wool Combing Company declares they will continue to ship in that manner. Their wagons were guarded by special officers, armed. There was no disturbance. Ten or fifteen strike breakers are at work in the combing plant. They had to move freight cars by hand inside the yards.

The Ware police sent word they could not detail the mounted police because a strike was threatened there. The same word came from Warren.

The twenty Worcester police went home today. They will be succeeded by twenty-five Metropolitan policemen.

LAWRENCE MARSHAL IS SUED BY WOMAN FOR FALSE ARREST

LAWRENCE, March 19.—Mrs. Francesco S. Pajak has entered suit against Acting Marshal John J. Sullivan of this city for $1,000. She charges false arrest of herself and child on February 24, at the North depot. George E. Hoover, Jr., of Boston, is Mrs. Pajak's counsel.

Edwin S. Morse, the auditor, who with Judge Frank A. Leverett is inLawrence investigating the finds of the I. W. W., expects to report to the Supreme Court in Boston tomorrow.

The I. W. W. is represented by J. P. S. Mahoney of this city and George E. Roewer, Jr., of Boston.

MARY MANNERING QUITS THE STAGE

NEW YORK, March 19.—Minna K. Gale has superseded Mary Mannering as Donald Emblen in "The Garden of Allah." At the Century Theatre it was explained that Mary Mannering, who is now Mrs. Frederick Wadsworth, was really not professionally back on the stage. Her husband merely had indulged her in a short ticket-of-leave. Now she must report back home in Detroit. In her place now appears another married actress, who has returned to the stage only once for a brief engagement since she was leading lady with Edwin Booth and Lawrence Barrett.

Jacob H. Schiff's Public Expression of Self-Pity

He Attacks the Press, Which Stands Only for Equal Justice for All, Rich and Poor Alike

While Mr. Schiff was pitying himself and the community at the Sulzer banquet last night, he might have continued to express his genuine sentiments as follows:

Pity the community in which a rich man cannot use his money as he sees fit and send people to prison for any length of time he desires.

Pity the community in which a District Attorney's office cannot be bought, a judge influenced, evidence manufactured and the Governor subdued without comment by a free and independent citizenship.

Pity an American community in which Russian methods cannot be introduced without protest, and pity those who escaped persecution at home and cannot be allowed to freely practice here.

Pity the community in which there are independent newspapers which cannot be bought by advertising to consent to injustice. As a matter of fact, this American community does not need pity and does not need Mr. Schiff if Mr. Schiff thinks that any man's wealth or work entitle him to corrupt the courts and debauch the law.

Mr. Schiff is overpowered by the benefits he has conferred upon the community. He should remember how much this community has done for him.

He came to this free country a poor boy from Frankfort for reasons that are yet unknown. He was welcomed to this land of opportunity. He was given the full benefit of our equal laws and exact justice. He grew to immense wealth and influence under the fostering care of our impartial government, and then the wealth and power and influence that he and his son had acquired in this free country, among this hospitable people, were used to undermine the American institutions which had encouraged him, to destroy the impartial laws which had benefited him, and to debauch the machinery of justice which had protected him.

If Mr. Schiff or his son has caused the imprisonment of a man under a sentence of thirty years for a crime he did not commit, he has done his utmost to destroy the most sacred of all American privileges —the right of every citizen to equality before the law.

Perhaps, upon maturer consideration, Mr. Schiff will realize that he and his son owe a little more to this community than this community owes to them.

NEW YORK, March 19.—Congressman William Sulzer was the guest of honor at the banquet tendered him last night at the Cafe Boulevard, in recognition of his efficient services as the Representative in Congress of the Tenth Congressional District of New York. Men prominent in every walk of life lauded Mr. Sulzer's career of useful service as a public servant, and Edwin Markham, the venerable poet, praised the honored guest in verse especially dedicated for the occasion.

The sensation of the evening, however, was an unexpected attack upon the press from Jacob H. Schiff, father of Mortimer L. Schiff, seemingly without invitation from any of the banquet committee.

As Mr. Schiff entered the banquet hall, a cry of "Hurrah for Jacob Schiff" was raised. Diners impulsively joined in handclapping. Rabbi Joseph Silverman raised his hand for silence, and said:

"One moment, please. Listen to Mr. Schiff."

Applause subsided, and the diners, half seated and half standing, turned toward the speaker's table, as Mr. Schiff addressed them as follows:

I have devoted my life to good and upbuilding in this community, and now, in the evening of my life, an infamous and vicious attack is being made upon the reputation and good name of my family.

Pity the community in which disreputable newspaper publishers can band themselves together and attack the good name of decent citizens and virtuous women.

Pity the community in which public officials find it necessary to kowtow to such newspapers and editorial writers, for fear of political future.

Pity the community in which people do not rise to crush out the existence of these evil-doers who defy public morality.

Once during his remarks the speaker was interrupted by a fatuous ripple of applause. Some one hissed at the mention of newspaper publishers.

But at the conclusion of Mr. Schiff's address there was no sound of either approval or disapproval. For a moment the diners seemed uncertain whether to applaud or not. During a brief interval no one seemed to know just how to receive the banker's remarks.

Those at the speaker's table resumed their seats after a brief moment of silence, and the reading of arriving guests went on as before without interruption.

THRONGS CHEER TAFT ON NEW HAMPSHIRE TRIP

the administration of which I have had the honor of being head. If you don't think it has been a progressive administration and progressive in accomplishment, condemn it. If you do believe that it has been progressive, approve it.

The President then proceeded to outline what had been accomplished in the shape of legislation during his administration, saying:

Reviews Administration.

We have passed the Payne bill, not to be sure, in a form entirely satisfactory to me, but it reduced the tariff and paved the way for further reductions.

When I took office the nation had a deficit of $50,000,000. It now has a surplus of $40,000,000.

We have passed the corporation tax, the maximum and minimum wage bill, the employers' liability bill, the workingmen's compensation act, opened trade with the Philippines, and have given the people of the country a square deal, without the blowing of trumpets. Isn't that progressive? I leave it to your judgment to decide.

Conditions, of necessity, made a progressive party. The men who were in favor of legislation that the people should have had long ago were progressives, but the people who accomplished what the progressive movement meant are more justly entitled to be numbered among the progressive element than are those who simply suggested progress.

I was here four years ago just before a strenuous campaign, but the sun is shining far brighter today than it was then.

The crowd was quick to catch his meaning and a prolonged cheer arose.

The President's first stop after leaving Boston at 8:55 was Nashua. Here he went to a noon meeting at the Colonial Theatre presided over by George B. French, one of Governor Bass's staunchest progressive lieutenants. President Taft discussed recall of judges and judicial decisions. He said:

Popular government is difficult because we have to mass the individual and apply the composite result. In that way we have the judgment of the people reflected in the law.

Our experience is that in carrying this into effect, we should have a Constitution to regulate. Under the constitution of New Hampshire the adult male population represents all the rest. You are not going to allow that majority to vote away the rights of the minority at any one time.

You must have the judiciary to protect the minority. What do you think of a system that does not result in that?

The very keystone of popular constitutional government is the independence of the judiciary. There is a proposition to give the majority of the people the right to make decisions, but it needs an eminent jurist to work out the question whether a certain law is within the constitution.

That is no reflection upon the people. Our people are the most intelligent on earth, and, realizing that, it needs experts for this work. There was a large attendance.

Nashua was in gala attire. The schools were closed. The mills and the stores were shut for two hours.

The President laid the cornerstone of the Young Men's Christian Association building, made a speech in the Colonial Theatre and then addressed an overflow meeting in Railroad square.

President Taft was escorted to the square by Companies I and D of the Second New Hampshire Regiment, commanded by Major William E. Sullivan. The crowds along Main street cheered the President from the time he left the theatre until he began to speak.

President Taft arrived at Manchester on his special train from Nashua at 11:50. He was met by Mayor Edward C. Smith and a large reception committee, who escorted the President to an automobile. The moment the President stepped from his car a salute of twenty-one guns was fired by Battery A of the N. H. N. G.

Four companies of the Manchester Battalion of the First Infantry, N. H. N. G., under command of Major M. J. Healy, and the First Infantry band were lined up opposite the station and presented arms as the President approached his carriage.

Address at the Armory.

The President was driven to the State Armory. After a brief address of welcome, President Taft was introduced to over 5,000 by Mayor Edward C. Smith. The President made an address which lasted about twenty minutes.

Under the escort of the Mayor and the committee a trip was made through the grounds of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company, and brief stops made at one of the mills. The party continued to Mc-Gregorville, where a reception was held by the Celtic Symphonic, the large French club. Several hundred school children were lined up across the street from the house and the boys' regiment from the St. Pierre Orphanage were on either side of the walk, forming a guard of honor.

The President made another brief address and held a reception for the several thousand French people who were anxious to greet him.

President Taft was then taken to Mechanics Hall, where he met the Taft Club of Manchester, under the leadership of Robert Pillsbury. Several hundred women were in the balcony and gave the President a hearty reception. A large number of the students of the Manchester High School occupied positions on the stage during the brief address which the President made.

Business Men's Welcome.

More than 15,000 people blocked the streets in front of Mechanics' Hall and the Taft party was driven through the crowd to the Derryfield Club, where all of the prominent business men of the Manchester welcomed the President. Luncheon was served to the presidential party and 200 invited guests. Following this a short reception was held at which the President received the Mayor, members of the city government and the Republican City Committee.

The President left Manchester for Concord.

President Taft's breakfast in Boston to a small group of friends at the Somerset was later planned. It was attended by Congressman Samuel W. McCall, former Governor Henry M. Quinby of New Hampshire, National Committeeman Fred W. Estabrook of Nashua, the President's private secretary, Charles E. Hilles, Major Rhoades, his personal aid; Press Representative Kerger and the President's son Charles.

A squad of ten policemen from the Back Bay station, under Sergeants Kneeland and Mason, kept the sidewalk clear in front of the hotel. The presidential party left the Somerset at 8:45. In two automobiles and seven minutes later was at the North Station.

The platform leading to the train was kept entirely clear for the free passage of President Taft, his escort and the aides' secret service men.

Three cheers for "Bill" Taft" piped a messenger boy on the fringe of the crowd, and they were given with gusto.

Owing to the hurry, President Taft did not get an opportunity to tell at the North Station how much he enjoyed himself, but his secretary, Mr. Hilles said:

"The President has asked me to say to the people of Boston that he is deeply gratified for their hearty reception. He says that this visit to Boston has made a lasting impression upon him."

Just before the train started at 9 o'clock, the President, bareheaded and without his overcoat, stepped upon the observation platform to wave his parting salute to the cheering crowd and to bow acknowledgment.

On the train with the President were former Senator John B. Cavanaugh of Manchester, Congressman Powers, former Governor Frank W. Rollins of New Hampshire, James O. Lyford, U. S. N., Rosecrans W. Pillsbury and Arthur E. Clarke of the Manchester Union and Colonel George E. Leighton of Dublin, N. H.

THE NEVER HOMES!

SAVE CHILDREN IN LYNN FIRE

Three horses were burned to death and nine families fled in their night clothing for their lives, many of the children being carried through smoke, in a fire early today that destroyed a stable and badly damaged two three-story tenements in Lynn. The damage was estimated at about $8,500.

The fire started in the two-story frame stable at No. 124 Vine street, owned by Jacob Cohen.

Directly in front of the stable was a three-story, six-apartment building, filled with families that have many little children. The fire caught this building, and soon the big building was in a turmoil of excitement and fear.

Men and women, carrying children in their arms, groped their way down stairways and through black hallways to the street. Frank and Louis White, neighbors, ran into the house and helped pilot women and children to safety. Fireman Edward Garrity also carried out some of the children.

A second building, containing six families, on Prospect street, only about ten feet from the blazing stable, also caught fire in the rear, and three families were endangered. All of the tenants ran from this building or were helped out.

In the building in front of the stable were the following tenants: First floor, rear, Joseph Finson, wife and two children; front, Henry Shlof, wife and one child. Second floor, rear, Abraham Karsh, wife and two children; front, Jacob Bix, wife, two children and some lodgers. Third floor, rear, Samuel Margolis, wife and one child; front, Louis Young, wife and two children.

In the Prospect street house in the rear—the apartments affected—were, first floor, Isadore Finn, wife and daughter; second floor, Frank Martin, wife and baby; third floor, Jacob Gilbert, wife and child.

The cause of the fire was not ascertained. Cohen, the owner of the stable, is a real estate dealer. His loss was estimated at $3,000; that in the house in front at $2,500, and the Prospect street house was damaged to the extent of $2,500. The tenants in nine of the apartments lost about everything they had.

SAYS REAL ESTATE IS MISREPRESENTED

Edward W. Simons of Litchfield, Conn., brought a bill in equity today against Ezra F. Pratt, a Boston real estate dealer, in which he charges that Pratt misrepresented the value of the "Symphony Apartments" on Westland avenue, in the Back Bay, which Simons contracted to purchase for $160,000, the market value set on the property, by Pratt. In his bill he says Pratt claimed to be the owner and stated that he had a first mortgage of $90,000 and a second mortgage of $35,000, which Simons claims is untrue. He wants the contract cancelled.

HEIMS DIVORCE TRIAL ON TODAY

A divorce suit, the testimony in which covers events occurring on two continents and in a dozen cities, is that of Dr. Henry Francis Heims of Florence, Italy, dentist to King Victor Emmanuel II of Italy, and his beautiful wife, Mrs. Irma Blanche Heimd. Which is set for trial before Judge Quinn in the Suffolk Divorce Court today.

People of prominence on both sides of the Atlantic, including the aristocracy of Italy, will figure in the testimony.

Dr. Heims, whose legal domicile is No. 833 Broadway, Chelsea, charges his wife with infidelity in Florence, Italy, in New York city and aboard the steamship Europa on December 25, 1909, en route to New York harbor. He also alleges gross and continued habits of intoxication.

In her opposing suit Mrs. Heims charges her husband with infidelity "with a party whose name is known" in Florence, in Paris, in London and in Boston. She also alleges he has neglected to support her since February 22, 1910, and was cruel and abusive to her on August 4, 1904, and on several other days.

Old Time Cowpath Stirs Society Folk

North Shore People Worth Millions Clash in Court Over a Winding Lane.

A winding lane, once a cowpath, has upset the social tranquility of fashionable North Shore circles and today caused the Suffolk County Land Court to be thronged with society leaders, many of them women.

"Old Lane" extends from Hale street to the shore. Mrs. Fannie H. Morse, wife of a retired Boston lawyer, claims the lane is part of her Summer estate, and she is contesting with neighbors worth many millions.

Until Mrs. Morse closed the lane in travel it was a popular shore thoroughfare. That is why there is such interest in the agitation.

Among the people contesting the case are Francis L. Higginson, the financier; President William M. Wood of the American Woolen Company, Richard Olney, trustee; Robert Treat Paine and Robert Treat Paine, 2d; Washington B. Thomas, the financier, and former head of the "Sugar Trust"; Henry Clay Pierce of New York, the oil magnate; Judge Charles T. Davis of the land court, Florence A. Swift of Chicago beef fame, Robert S. Bradley, Gordon Dexter, Sarah C. Paine, Marianne Paine, Helen Paine, Marianne A. Sargent, Mary A. Thomas, trustee; Elizabeth L. Fitts, General Charles J. Paine of Weston, the famous yacht racer; Harry Burnet of Southboro, trustee; Ada Small Moore, Charles J. Morse and Esther F. Tid of Beverly, John W. Wheelwright, Mary A. Thomas, trustee, and the Boston & Maine railroad.

Set Date for Hearing in Grace Mystery

Ex-Chief Eliminates Second Woman

Confer Today on Question of Bail for Release of Accused Woman.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 19.—The Grace mystery narrows down to just three things, says former Chief of Police John W. Ball.

"Grace shot himself; a burglar or some other outsider shot him, or his wife did it. Those are the charges.

"I've read every word printed on this Grace case and I've done a little digging into it on my own account. And after considering every theory that might come up and throwing out all that won't stand the test of possibility, it's the queerest case I ever studied, and the queerest part of it is Mrs. Daisy Grace herself."

The preliminary hearing of the charges against Mrs. Grace has been set for March 28. The question of bail is being discussed at a conference today.

Attorneys for Mrs. Grace will ask for her release on bail if Mr. Grace does not die soon. The doctors say that he cannot recover, as his spinal cord was severed by a bullet. He may die at any time or may live for weeks.

Here is former Chief Ball's story of the shooting mystery:

By JOHN W. BALL.

Say Grace shot himself. The doctors say the shot was fired from several feet away. There were no powder burns on his skin. He was shot away around on the left side, where he couldn't possibly have held the gun. The weapon itself was found downstairs, a long way from the wounded man, and he was locked inside the room and the key hidden in a box on the wall.

Then, where's the motive for Grace accusing his wife if he shot himself? The dried blood shows he had been shot more than an hour before she left the house at 12:30 o'clock. Wouldn't he have called to her for help? We can throw that theory into the discard.

Shot Fired From Inside the Room.

Now, the "outsider" or burglar" theory. There is a theory that a negro called shot him for a small sum of money in his room. Mrs. Grace accuses a person she won't name. Let's look into that.

In the first place, he was in bed upstairs. A shot couldn't have come through the window and hit him, for there was no place it could have been fired from. Then Grace's left side couldn't have been toward the window unless he slept on his face. If he had been awake he would have known where he was shot. It could not have come from outside the room. And the gun with one cartridge exploded was one belonging to him.

Say a negro on the inside shot him. Would a negro have had sense enough to drug a man and then shoot him? Wasn't Mrs. Grace in the house until 12:30 o'clock by her own statement, and hadn't Grace been shot not later than 11 o'clock, judging from the dried blood found at 2:30 o'clock? You can't get away from that dried blood fact.

Wouldn't she have heard the shot? Wouldn't she have rushed to bring help? Wouldn't Grace have known who shot him if he hadn't been drugged? Haven't the two servants been locked up and put through the third degree? They'd have talked by this time if they knew anything. You can throw that idea aside.

No Other Woman in the Mystery.

Another woman in the case? There's been talk about that. There's only one other woman brought into this thing by rumor. She has been in a local hospital for a week. She was there when the shot was fired. She couldn't have figured in it. So that line won't stand up.

Now, we come to the only thing left—Mrs. Grace. Let's see how the circumstances line up there.

They say a criminal never plotted a crime so well, never laid a chain of artificial circumstances so carefully, never planned an alibi so strong that he didn't put his foot in it through some little thing that slipped a cog.

And if Mrs. Grace planned the death of her husband and a clear proof of her innocence, there was just one thing which broke the chain and landed her in trouble—Grace lived long enough to talk—long enough to call the police. Suppose that bullet had killed him instantly. He might be lying there yet, the servants gone, the house locked up, he supposed to be in Philadelphia—his body waiting until accident should discover it or his wife come back from her Newnan visit and find it in the house.

See how easy it would have been if the shot had killed him, taking the suppositon based on Grace's own words, that his wife is guilty?

"You're not sick, Gene; you're sleeping."

the woman says Mrs. Grace told her husband. Then, she says, Grace muttered:

"No, that's not what's the matter with me."

That's the last the servants saw of him.

URGES LAW TO PREVENT ABUSES OF COLD STORAGE

At a hearing before the Committee on Public Health at the State House today on the bill calling for regulation of the cold storage business, Professor F. Spencer Baldwin, a member of the Cold Storage Commission, speaking in favor of the bill, declared the abuses in the business should be prevented by law. He said:

"It is essential that the public should be protected against the storage of unfit and improper goods, against the evils of improper refrigeration in the storage houses, against the fraud on the consumers due to the sale of cold storage goods as fresh, and the use of warehouses as instruments to inflate prices of given commodities."

Alden B. Briggs, attorney for the Boston Fruit and Produce Exchange, said his clients opposed the bill.

ALLEN BANDITS HAVE ESCAPED

ROANOKE, Va., March 19.—Members of the notorious Allen gang, wanted for the shooting up of the Carroll County courthouse last Thursday, have escaped from their trap set for them at Squirrel Spur in the Blue Ridge mountains and have made their way into an almost trackless wilderness about six by twelve miles long, on the Virginia-North Carolina border, according to advices received here this afternoon.

According to mountain folks who know the region into which the Allens have fled, the gangs may be able to disappear for some time, as the section in which they have taken refuge is without roads, or even bridle paths, abounds in game and is so thickly grown with brush that it is next to impossible for a large body of men to penetrate it. Sidna Allen is said to be still leading the band, despite his wounds.

WEDNESDAY—MEN'S DAY SUITS—SEVEN DOLLARS

Tomorrow the Henry Siegel Co. Will Sell Two Hundred and Thirty-Five Suits for Men of All Builds at a Sentionally Low Price—Third Floor—8:35 A. M.

THEY'LL GO MIGHTY FAST—DON'T BE VERY LATE

BOSTON, March 19.—This is a mighty small announcement as to space, for a big bargain event. The daylight aisle at the Essex street side of the third floor, Henry Siegel Company is certainly an innovation for a bargain sale. It's the very opposite of the so-called Bargain Sections, not only from the aspect of daylight and artificial light, but far deeper. The suits to be sold tomorrow at $7.00 will stand thorough examination in broad daylight, with plenty of large mirrors to reflect their fit and style when you try them on.

There are thousands of men who at the present time either have to buy a suit of clothes at a very nominal price or go without. The high cost of living—the outfitting of the women folks and children (of course this does not apply to bachelors) makes a heavy demand on the pocketbook. Hence, Men's Day on Wednesday is becoming a very popular event.

A detailed description of the suits on sale tomorrow is impossible at this writing, because the groups will not be arranged for selling until this evening. There will be medium weights and light weights, dark, and light mixtures; in cassimeres, cheviots and worsteds; also navy blue serges. The suits are all serge lined and the workmanship far above the average. Every suit sold at $7.00 tomorrow will become its own advertisement.

The man with $7.00 to spend is just as welcome in our clothing department on the third floor as the man who purchases a $35.00 suit, and the attention will be just as painstaking—furthermore, no purchase becomes a closed transaction at the Henry Siegel Company's store unless YOU declare yourself MORE than satisfied.

Remember, tomorrow, third floor, Washington and Essex streets. Take elevator or escalator. Bright and early.

MOTOR SHOW DRAWS CROWDS

By J. C. KERRISON.

This is the next to the last day of Boston's first commercial vehicle show, and the result is, hundreds of people who have not visited Mechanics Building to get a peep at the greatest collection of motor trucks ever exhibited, are now hastening to make that postponed visit. The crowds in the building are much larger than the usual day throng.

Last night, however, the biggest throng since the opening night was present. So many people filled the halls, that it greatly resembled the big attendance at the pleasure car show. This outpouring was no doubt due to the semi-holiday which gave many people an opportunity to see the show for the first time.

But today, without the holiday atmosphere, the halls have been well filled since the opening of the doors and increasing in size every hour. As they parade through the various halls and basement they seem to find much to interest them.

The moving bodies, going up and down, the swivelled frames, moving a load to either right or left to be dumped at the right spot, the working models at the many booths, all serve their purposes of attracting the attention and holding the interest of the visitors.

Always Something New.

It seems that there is always something new to be seen at the show. Many merchants and transportation superintendents are almost daily visitors at the exhibition. They are riding up the different exhibits and inspecting their merits very closely, before they reach their final decision on the matter.

Sales have been plentiful since the first day, but today and tomorrow are expected to be the red letter days in that respect. The prospective buyer is not purchasing a machine on the salesman's say-so, but has to be shown.

Therefore, they do not place their order on the first visit, or even on a second inspection, but like to study the working of the numerous types on exhibition before the final splurge is made.

While many have about decided just the truck that will answer their every purpose, and have so told the dealer of that specific wagon, they display an anxiety to see just one more truck under working conditions before they place the order.

Hard Task to Select Car.

It is a hard task sometimes for a merchant to decide whether a gasolene or an electric truck is the best method of transporting his goods.

There is such a varied amount of these two types on display, that a person interested can find out all he wants to about them without going any further than Mechanics Building.

While gasolene cars predominate at the show, electric commercial cars are seen in large numbers and the interest in them is very noticeable.

The dealers in electric trucks and delivery wagons say they are having good success at the show and in the way of sales.

They have been conducting a vigorous campaign during the past year to introduce the modern electric in Boston and vicinity, and to overcome the old-time prejudice against this type of motor vehicle, which was brought about by some early unfortunate experiences.

They say that this prejudice is rapidly being overcome, and that Boston business men are now willing to consider the claims of the electric, and when they consider these claims and investigate the trucks, they become buyers.

Boom for Electric Cars.

A large number of electrics is in daily operation, and it will be materially increased as a result of the truck show.

While much has been written about the wonderful exhibit of horseless wagons inside Mechanics Building, little has been said about the imposing exhibition of trucks outside the massive building. Along Huntington avenue and the surrounding streets, is a show in itself, and one of great interest to the business man who likes to be shown what can be accomplished.

In the streets of that section can be seen at all times, trucks with various signs telling of the truck's merits, the various performances which they are making to prove to those who have to be convinced that the motor truck is not a thing to be developed, but is now capable of carrying on the transportation work of the world.

With but one more day remaining to see the show, it is expected that larger crowds than ever will take advantage of the opportunity of inspecting these latest of horseless vehicles.

CHARGES INFLUENCE IN GIFT OF STOCKS

George S. Woodbridge of Sharon claims that his wife's sister, Belle W. Best, had such an influence over his wife in her last illness that she induced her to give her twenty shares of American Telephone stock worth $2,900, twelve shares of Copper Range Consolidated worth $672, ten shares of American Sugar worth $1,220, two diamond rings and a diamond pin. As his wife's administrator he seeks to get this property back from his sister-in-law and today filed a suit in the Superior Court. Mrs. Woodbridge died in January.

ALLEN NEW HEAD OF POLICE RELIEF CLUB

Patrolman Charles W. Allen has been elected president of the Somerville Police Relief Association, defeating Patrolman Jacob W. Skinner and Captain Robert R. Perry. Captain Perry had been president of the association every year, with the exception of one, since the organization of the association, forty years ago.

WHY MARCH IS THE MOST DANGEROUS

March is the most dangerous month of the year because the change of season is more than a good many systems can stand. Too often it is true that the sick "last only till spring." But, if the system is fortified, if the impurities are driven from the blood, and the nerve tissues fed with wholesome and strength-giving food medicine, there is no danger in the change of seasons. Pastor John's Medicine is invaluable as a tonic in the spring. It strengthens the system and drives out the poisonous waste matter—builds up the body. It is this power that has made it so successful in curing colds and all throat and lung troubles. No weakening stimulants, morphine or other dangerous drugs.

We would make it better —but we can't

We could make it cheaper —but we won't

HERE'S THE FIRST GLIMPSE OF NEW SLASHED SKIRT!

The latest thing in Paris skirts—the Taillen. Drawn from a telegraphed description.

NEW YORK, March 19.—New Yorkers were treated to their first glimpse of the slashed skirt that has set gay Paris awhirl. The next question that arises is, who among the fair devotees of fashion will be brave enough to wear it?

The latest thing in skirts, this model is called the Taillen costume, and its genius claim to distinction lies in the fact that the skirt is slit wide open above the knee to show the limbs of the woman who wears it.

This new creation takes its name from Mme. Taillen, the famous directoire. Its initial debut, across the water, created the most profound sensation of the season. Added interest attached to the event in gay Paris in that the fair wearer also wore directoire stockings of the silken fish-net vintage.

The coronage of the model shown at New York today is a delicately shaded pink with a deep decollete corsage. It is accompanied by a white hat, topped off with osprey. But everything else connected with the costume pales into insignificance when contrasted with the slit-skirt and fish-net stocking possibilities that may face New Yorkers along the great White Way at any moment in the future.

DORCHESTER CLUB HAS FORMAL OPENING

The new Dorchester Club, on Talbot avenue, made up principally of Dorchester men, held its formal opening. The rooms were thrown open for the reception of members and their families. Tilton S. Bell, secretary of the club, had charge of the arrangement. On the reception committee were the officers of the club: President, Mayor John F. Fitzgerald; vice-presidents, Charles Logue and John Becrow; secretary, Tilton S. Bell; treasurer, Francis M. Carroll, and directors, Colonel W. J. Doherty, Kearney Delaney, Thomas Griffin, Harrison H. Atwood, Edward G. Richardson, Alva F. Clark, Henry M. Saunders, Dr. R. W. Brayton, A. C. C. Hill and William McDevitt.

URGING ACTION ON CUSTOM HOUSE BILL

Elwyn G. Preston is in Washington for the purpose of seeing that some action is taken upon the bill for a supplemental $250,000 appropriation for the Boston Custom House. He thinks that too large an amount of money is being used in the rental of temporary quarters. Congressman Curley will confer with Wallace L. Pierce here and in returning to Washington will try, with other members of the Massachusetts delegation, to hasten action in the committee on public buildings and grounds on this measure.

ABUNDANCE OF SOFT, FLUFFY HAIR AND NOT A PARTICLE OF DANDRUFF

Get a 25 cent bottle of Danderine and just try this—stops hair falling out at once.

Danderine dissolves every particle of Dandruff like snow beneath the blazing sun, cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp; forever stopping itching and falling hair.

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you cannot find a single trace of Dandruff or a loose or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you will actually see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—sprouting all over the scalp.

A little Danderine will immediately double the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove to yourself tonight—now—that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine.

MINIMUM WAGE BILL IS PUT IN

LONDON, March 19.—The minimum wage bill, designed to end the National coal strike throughout the United Kingdom, was introduced in Parliament by Premier Asquith today.

The bill provides for the demands which the federated union acted upon the operators when they went upon strike a fortnight ago, namely—a minimum wage scale throughout the coal fields of England, Wales and Scotland. The bill has the support of the government, the Laborites and the Irish Nationalists, and it is possible that it may be enacted and signed before next week.

The bill does not provide a definite scale of prices. They are to be left to arbitration, as different conditions prevailing in the various fields will produce a sliding scale of figures.

"Passage Is Imperative."

After introducing the bill Premier Asquith said:

"The passage of this bill into a law in the shortest possible time is imperative. The government resorted to legislation as a last resource, as insurmountable difficulties beset the way of settlement by agreement."

The bill will be up for its second reading Thursday and will take precedence over all other business. King George will get the bill Saturday and immediately sign it. As it stands the law applies to a period of three years, but can be prolonged if the interested parties wish. It provides safeguards for operators as well as the miners. The Premier explained that working rules and wage rates would be fixed by joint district boards in the various fields.

Great Labor Victory.

This is the first time in the history of England that the government has adopted a course so ruffled to end a great labor struggle. It is one of the greatest victories organized labor has ever won in the United Kingdom.

Even if the men return to work next week it will be weeks before Great Britain fully recovers from the stagnation into which the great tie-up has plunged the country. By that time the men alone will have lost $30,000,000 in wages, not to mention the terrible drain on financial and industrial enterprises.

The strike called out 1,000,000 miners in all parts of the United Kingdom, after repeated conferences between the operators and committees representing the men had failed. The operators refused to yield to any of the demands of the miners. That for a minimum wage provision was the underlying cause of the big strike.

The seriousness of the situation developed by the strike was apparent before it had been in effect twenty-four hours. Fully 500,000 persons in various other lines of industry were thrown out of work because the concerns by whom they were employed could not obtain coal.

AUTO SHOW NOTES.

Salesmanager Conens of the International Motor Company, makers of the Mack and Saurer trucks, took a party of newspapermen over to Lexington this forenoon yesterday afternoon, where an elaborate dinner was served. The party made the journey in the big Saurer omnibus, which has been attracting much attention on the streets of this city since the show opened.

The powerful motors carried the gigantic car without any difficulty over the Newburyport turnpike where the mud was up to the hubs, proving to the entire satisfaction of those present that the three-ton truck can accomplish all that is claimed for it.

* * *

General Sales Manager Diller of the Lauth-Jeurgens Company is enthusiastic in his praise for the Boston show. He states that he has been surprised at the tremendous interest in the motor trucks in this section and the great demand for that type of vehicle. It might also be stated that he is immensely pleased with the popularity of the Lauth-Jeurgens truck in this part of the country.

I. M. Lewis, treasurer and general manager of the Hessemer Motor Truck Company of Grove City, Pa., is exhibiting a one-ton truck equipped with a self-starter at the big show in Mechanics Building. Mr. Lewis is so favorably impressed with the outlook for business here that he is making preparations for the establishment of a branch in Boston.

"This year's show is setting a new record for us from the standpoint of business," said George H. Hudson, the Alco branch manager. "Not only has the number of actual orders placed been greater, but hundreds of business men have signified an interest in motor trucks and want to be told more of their saving over horse equipment.

"The proximity of our Providence factory to Boston, and the new service building for our trucks nearby, have attracted many. A number of them have made trips to the shops to see at close range just how the trucks are manufactured."

The Fisk Rubber Company has recently closed a contract for equipment with the Detroit Taxicab & Transfer Company of Detroit, Mich.

Fisk equipment is now used on the majority of taxicabs in the different large cities of the United States. There are 1,000 cabs in New York alone using the Fisk Bolted Clincher and Fisk Detachable Rim. The same equipment is very prominent in Chicago and other large Western cities.

Four complete Garford commercial vehicles and a five-ton chassis compose the exhibit of the Garford Company. Included in the Garford space is a 2,000 pound sidewalk wagon, five-ton gear-driven truck, five-ton gear-driven chassis, one-ton friction-driven truck and three-ton friction-driven truck. All are equipped with finished bodies except the five-ton gear-driven chassis, which is partially disembled so that the working parts can readily be inspected by prospective buyers.

* * *

Peerless trucks at the show are made with carrying capacities of three, four and five tons, a standard motor being used for all Peerless models. This motor is especially designed for truck service and is of the four-cylinder long stroke type with cylinders cast in pairs, the bore being 4½ inches and the stroke 6½ inches.

Mayor Greets Former Slave, 100 Years Old

Aunt Betty Very of Worcester Was Given Freedom Long Before the Civil War.

WORCESTER, March 19.—Today is one of the three great days in the life of "Aunt Betty" Very, for it is her hundredth birthday. The two other days by which she sets great store are the one, years before the war, when she left the old Virginy plantation a free woman; and January 1, 1863, when Abraham Lincoln issued the emancipation proclamation.

David F. O'Connell, Mayor of Worcester, came today to her modest little home at No. 21 Tufts street, and "Aunt Betty" shook his hand and was congratulated by "Ole Honah."

Then many members of the Trinity Methodist Church were her guests, and her descendants to three generations gathered to extend their best wishes. Her daughter, Mrs. Dorcette Jackson, and her grand-daughter, Mrs. Lena Wilson, received with her.

TUG WRECKED OFF ROCKPORT

ROCKPORT, Me., March 19.—The tug William H. Yerkes, Jr., of Boston, on its way to Portsmouth, N. H., struck off Rockport at 3 a. m. today. At noon the tug was pounding on the ledge and in danger. The craft was in charge of Captain Edward Johnson.

Part of the crew came ashore, but several stuck to the tug. The life saving crew of Rockport is lying alongside, ready to take the crew off should the tug sink. The Gas Leader of Boston attempted to pull the wrecked craft off the rocks, but could not.

Lights in Your Hair, Ladies, Is the Latest

Illuminated Coiffures and Real, Old-Fashioned Hoopskirts Are Coming.

CHICAGO, March 23.—The time between gowns are hopelessdoomed and in their place this season comes the panier gown. Three thousand dressmakers from all parts of the United States, now assembled here, are enthusiastic over the panier, which is admitted to be the forerunner of hoopskirts. In two years, at the latest, they predict, the wide hoopskirt will be the rage.

In millinery the most startling novelty this season will be tiny electric lights in the hair. These are operated by a very small, flat storage battery worn in the corsage and hidden decorative in itself because of its artistic design and jeweled effect. The light bulbs represent various tinted flowers and are very fetching when arranged in the coiffure. Another pattern carries the storage battery in the crown of the hat.

HIT A SNAG IN SUGAR FIGHT

NEW YORK, March 19.—The Sugar Trust prosecution in the United States District Court struck a snag today when Judge Hand ruled that the letters which passed between Washington B. Thomas, head of the trust now on trial, and his cousin, David Stetson, could not be admitted. These letters, the judge held, are privileged communications.

In the investigation by the Hardwick Congressional Committee last Summer, T. S. Fuller of counsel for the Sugar forces, voluntarily produced the letters, which are enclosed in the records of the investigation. District Attorney Wise offered them in evidence. Delancey Nicoll, who represents the sugar officials, argued the correspondence was included in the private records of the Congressional committee, and Judge Hand upheld him.

STATE HOUSE NOTES

The House of Representatives today held two sessions for the first time this year. The morning session opened at 11 o'clock, and a recess was taken at 1 o'clock until 2 o'clock. Final adjournment was taken at 4:40 o'clock. The calendar consisted of forty-two pages, the largest in the history of the House and contained exactly 386 matters.

Representative McGrath of Ward 18, Boston, offered an order directing Speaker Cushing to issue a precept for a special election in the eighteenth Representative District in the vacancy caused by the death of Representative Cronin. The order was passed over until tomorrow for consideration.

Representative W. H. Sullivan of Boston moved to substitute for an adverse committee report a bill requiring owners of automobiles to make deposit of $5,000 as a guarantee for damages which may be awarded for accidents. The bill was defeated by a vote of twelve yeas to forty nays.

PROF. MONTGOMERY DEAD.

"CYCLONE" BURNS WINS IN FAST WRESTLING BOUT FROM KARLA

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTING NEWS

BOSTON FENCER INJURED AT MEET FOR NEW YORK CUP

RILEY'S COLUMN

WHEN you and I were kids, we used to sell old bottles and rags, buy a ten cent bat and a ten cent ball, get the rest of the bunch and hunt for a vacant lot to play ball. After we landed at the lot, we usually had a fight with another bunch of kids for possession.

* * *

YESTERDAY thirty-five grown-up Boston National baseball players at August, Ga., with $1.25 baseballs and individual bats, hunted up a vacant lot in Augusta, hung on the tail-end of any old wagons and went out to play baseball. They found a bunch of kids, drove 'em off and had the time of their lives.

* * *

THE only difference was they all chipped in gave the kids enough to buy a box of baseballs, and let them be spectators at an exhibition of big league baseball in an open lot.

* * *

IF you and I had been the victims when a wink of sleep, or alone a sweater, we were kids, we wouldn't have stopped talking about it yet.

LITTLE VIRGINIA KLING, the six year-old mascot of the Boston Pilgrims, is the most positive mascot in the big leagues. "Do you know," she said to one of the women of the Boston party at Augusta, Ga., today, "I have a cousin who says Santa Claus comes in an aeroplane. I know better, he comes with reindeers in a sleigh. My cousin is the stupidest thing I ever knew. Don't you think so?"

* * *

"WELL, no," said the victim of the cross-examination, "I think Santa Claus comes in an aeroplane now; it's more up-to-date." "Well, then, you're just as stupid as he is," said the young lady. "And you can prove it by my pins. Wait till he wins the pennant and he'll tell you all about it."

* * *

"STUBBY BILL" JONES—otherwise known as "Little Nemo"—the smallest member of the Boston Nationals, has lost his bright red sweater. Before Jones started for Augusta he bought the boldest red sweater he could find. Today he could not find it.

* * *

"HUB" PERDUE appeared at the ball park with a red sweater. "That's mine," said Jones. "I've been sick abed for a week," said Perdue. "Couldn't steal a bigger following than T. Roosevelt.

* * *

TWO Boston newspaper men left Augusta, Ga., Friday night just before the Georgia flood struck the training camp. One of them was bound for Boston. He wired today from Greenwood, S. C., that he was stalled there and was sorry he didn't stay in Augusta.

* * *

THE other was headed for Hot Springs, under solemn oath that he would wire back if he went through the flood alive. He hasn't since been heard from, although the newspapers fail to report any lost trains.

CY YOUNG is the hero of Augusta. Every one of 35,000 citizens has looked for him. Ty Cobb, the "Georgia Peach" has given the State more fame than any of its other offsprings, but Cobb is gone now and Cy has taken his place. When he starts for the ball field he has a bigger following than T. Roosevelt.

Kilbane Turns Down an Offer of $15,000

CLEVELAND, March 13.—An offer of $15,000 to Johnny Kilbane to meet Abe Attell on July 4 at some Eastern point was turned down by the new champion. Manager Dunn, for Kilbane, explained that the fighter had already agreed to fight the new championship battle with Tommy Carey in Los Angeles on Labor day. An offer for a bout in New York, Kilbane to name his opponent and the number of rounds, has been received, but no action taken.

CANADIENS EASY FOR WANDERERS

NEW YORK, March 13.—The Canadiens, one of the four professional Canadian hockey teams in this country playing for the professional title, saw their chances of $2,500 go glimmering at the Ice Palace Rink, where the Wanderers of Montreal defeated them, 12 to 5. The teams played a 5-to-5 tie in Boston before coming here, and the total of the two nights' play put the Canadiens out of the race by the tidy score of 17 to 10.

ONE MORE FOR GOODWIN.

Pirates and Phillies at War Over Grounds

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 13.—War has been declared between the Phillies and Pittsburg teams in training here. Immediately on arriving Pittsburg took possession of Whittington Park.

President Fogel has set the baseball field here, but Whittington Park across the way, has better seating arrangements, so the Phillies' president asked Manager Fred Clarke to swap parks for the big game between Phillies and Boston Americans. Fogel received quite a curt refusal from Manager Clarke.

Clarke advertised his games in big type in all the local newspapers, while he also had sandwich men paraded about the valley. Fogel quickly got busy and had a squad of megaphone men around the town telling the citizens that the real games would be at Fogel Field.

Miss Gertrude Hooper leads the freshmen while Miss Leslie Hooper is the sophomore leader.

The two sisters are the daughters of Professor William S. Hooper of the Tufts faculty.

CHANCE TIES TY'S FEAT.

MOBILE, Ala., March 13.—The Chicago Nationals defeated the Mobile team of the Southern League here 4 to 1. Frank Chance knocked a home run over the left field fence, a feat accomplished but once before and that by Ty Cobb.

BOSTON FENCER HAS CLOSE CALL

J. A. McLaughlin, the B. A. A. fencer, was injured at the New York Turn Verein in a bout with George H. Breed of the Fencers' Club. Breed made a direct attack at his opponent, the point of his foil finding room to touched McLaughlin's elbow. The broken foil glanced from the elbow and penetrated McLaughlin's thigh. The cut was two inches deep in the muscle, but was not serious. Breed won the bout, four to two.

The tournament, which was for the team championship of the Amateur Fencers' League, was won by the Fencers' Club. Teams of three men each were also entered from the New A. A. Club, the B. A. A. and the New York Turn Verein.

The Boston fencers won the opening round with the Turn Verein, and the New York A. A. were eliminated by the Fencers' Club following.

The Boston A. A. and the Fencers' Club clashed in the final round and the Fencers' Club by a score of five bouts to two. Dr. F. W. Allen of the Boston team was the only member of the team to score in the finals. He won two bouts, defeating Andrew Hall, four touches to one, and also defeated A. Y. Z. Post by the same score.

Jimmy Walsh Wins Over Eddie Sherman

Eddie Sherman of New York was no match for Jimmy Walsh, the Boston bantamweight champion, in their bout at the Central Athletic Club, the local boy winning about as he pleased.

The opening bout was a four round affair between O'Brien of Charlestown and Teddy Murphy of the West End. Murphy did the better work.

Young Ketchel and Young Reno made a fast four-round bout, as did Young Cash of the North End and Young Ogden of Brookline.

The club officials are satisfied now that the fans do not care for bouts where no decisions are given, and last night announced that at future meetings they will be given.

At the next meeting Johnny Connelly will meet a Philadelphia boxer in a ten-round bout, and Joe Farron of the North End and Pat Rocco will clash in an eight-round affair.

READVILLE LISTS CLOSE MARCH 26

Although the Readville and Clarke Oak Grand Circuit meetings do not come along until well into the summer, the entries for the $25,000 worth of early closing stake events for Readville, and for practically the same amount of stakes at Hartford, complete programmes of which have already appeared, will close a week from tomorrow. Likewise the lists of entries will probably be the first to make their appearance, though whether a pretty fair line upon which of the many stake prospects that have been touted during the around-the-stove season are counted by owners and trainers being really worth making first payments upon.

The changed conditions for the $10,000 American Trotting Derby, Readville's feature event this year, have attracted great attention among horsemen throughout the country to see how this year, and it appears to be the general opinion that the conditions for the 1912 race are more nearly ideal than any that have been formulated in former years. Under the arrangement it will afford a race for every horse in training, and the $10,000 is to be split into $5,000 for five preliminaries of $1,000 each and the other $5,000 for the final. These preliminaries will be one mile dashes, the horses scoring as usual, and the dashes will be for horses eligible respectively to the 2.15, 2.10, 2.08, 2.06 and free for-all class, trots. The three money-winners in each of the five dashes will then be handicapped on what they showed in their heats, and will be sent away later in the afternoon in a mile and a half handicap, standing start, in which the $1,000 winner will have a second horse's $1,000, $500 to the third, $400 to fourth. The entrance fee in this race will be only 2 per cent. of the purse.

OTTAWA SEVEN LOSES TO FAST QUEBEC TEAM

The Quebec hockey champions had little difficulty in defeating the Ottawa seven at the Arena, the score standing 9 to 2.

Quebec never had to extend itself, and after picking up six goals in the first period simply played safe. Ottawa was in splendid form, the forwards being slow and without team work, while its defence was much like a corps mesh screen.

Although Quebec was not forced, its men showed that they are capable players, with team work the feature. Their star man seemed to be Prodgers, the point, who was swift and exceedingly clever with his stick. Marks had terrific speed and Morris is the fast and sure one.

$1,500 FROM B. A. A. FOR OLYMPIC FUND

The Boston Athletic Association will contribute on or about April 1, $1,500 to the American Olympic fund it was announced today. Twenty-five thousand dollars will be needed, the committee says, and so far the bulk of the contributions have come from New York, Chicago, Boston, San Francisco and Philadelphia. Walter Camp has forwarded a check for $200 to Marshall Hartwell. It is expected that Princeton, Pennsylvania, Dartmouth and Georgetown in the East and West will send funds later.

BURNS WINNER IN MAT BOUT

By JACK CONWAY.

"Cyclone" Burns, the best wrestler developed in Boston for many years, earned the right to meet with America for the light heavyweight championship of the world when he decisively defeated "Hindu" Karla at the Grand Opera House last night. Burns completely outclassed the grapples from India, gaining the first fall in 20m. 45s., and the second fall in 4m. 15s.

It will be remembered that Karla wrestled Ryuko, the Japanese champion, at Mechanics Building last month and that Jack Herman's protege did not win until after a hard struggle. Burns' clean-cut victory was a popular one and he was given a great ovation when he obtained the second fall.

The men started off at a fast clip. The Hindu was very aggressive and his ability to wiggle out of difficult holds brought cheers from the spectators. Burns took things very easy and was apparently sizing up his opponent.

After fifteen minutes of wrestling, Burns let himself out and then the fun began in earnest. Karla was very aggressive and used "cyclone" half Nelson.

Suddenly Burns grasped Karla in his strong arms and hurled him to the mat. In a fraction of a second, Burns had pinned Karla's shoulders to the mat with a head scissors hold.

When the men returned to action, Burns did not waste any time in getting down to business and in 4m. 15s. he gained the second fall with a crotch hold.

The sensational bout of the evening between Pat O'Neil, heavyweight champion of Ireland, and "Shad" Link was somewhat of a comedy. O'Neil is a big, powerful fellow but does not possess a great deal of science.

On the other hand, Link is an old timer and has seen better days. His head is as smooth as a billiard ball. The old fellow got whaled quickly and lost the match in straight falls. O'Neil got the first fall with a half nelson in 12m. 30s. and the second fall with a crotch hold in 12m. 5s.

Fritz Hanson won over Jack Butler in a slashing preliminary. This was by far the best bout of the evening and one of the classiest exhibitions of wrestling that has ever been witnessed in this city.

Hanson gained the first fall in 40m. 45s. with a tussle from the front after a stirring contest. The holder of the Lord Lonsdale belt got the second fall in 15m. 5s.

Hanson outweighed his antagonist by about fifteen pounds, and when the men prepared for action a large number of the spectators were of the opinion that Hanson would win easily. But they were sadly mistaken.

Hanson did most of the forcing during the first few minutes of the match, but after that he slowed up and was content to let Butler do the work.

As the bout progressed, Butler became tired and when Hanson took the aggressive he was unable to successfully stop his fierce onslaught. When Hanson gained the first fall, the men were about exhausted.

Butler was pretty tired when the men again started work. Hanson was fairly fresh and easily got the second fall in 13m. 5s.

All three matches were refereed by Manager George Tuohey, and, needless to say, "Little George" was right there in his element.

Dr. Ben Roller will met Sampson in the main bout next Monday night. Roller is well known to local devotees of the mat game, while Sampson has made an enviable record in the West.

MANY EVENTS IN BIG CARNIVAL

The big ice carnival for the benefit of the Frances E. Willard Settlement, for which preparations have been in progress for over a month, will be held at the Boston Arena tonight, and a large attendance of society and others interested in ice sports will be present.

The evening's entertainment will open with a grand march of fifty couples, attired in fancy and grotesque costumes, who will go through a series of evolutions and formations on skates.

Another feature of the program will be the one-mile royal pursuit race open to all amateur speed skaters, and among the entries in this are such well-know speed skaters as Royal Dunnaby of Dorchester, J. T. Murch of Dorchester, Harry Nevin of Boston, Gordon Thompson of Roxbury, P. Richenburg of Dorchester and Daniel Hastings of South Framingham and a number of others.

The balance of the program will include exhibitions of fancy skating by Miss Edith Rotch and her brother, Charles M. Rotch, of the Back Bay Skating Club, and an exhibition by Arthur Held, professional with the Minto Club of Ottawa, and a hockey league on fancy skating by Jim Greene and Ernest Dalton, a relay team race between boy scouts and a relay team race of school girls, a polo for lady and gentleman, a potato race, an obstacle race, an outer edge race for lady and gentleman, a push ball game for the boys of the Frances E. Willard Settlement and the South End House, a hockey game between an all-Intercholastic seven and an all-star seven.

The players on the all-Interscholastic seven will include Walter Whittaker of Somerville High School, Ray Hannon and Gately of the Melrose High School, Bower, Howe and Ruttrick of Arlington High and Harrington of the Cambridge Latin.

BAY VIEWS READY TO ARRANGE BALL GAMES

Manager Jud Logan of the Bay View A. A. of South Boston has started collecting his players and from early indications Jud should have one of the strongest teams ever turned out in South Boston. Logan will have such players as Oaks, Blowers, Tracy, Mortimer, Fitzgerald, Sheehan, Murphy and Walsh on his roster. Some of these players are nearly ready for the league ball and are out to make this season their best. Logan has ordered his men to start early and as the team is going after the State championship and want an early start. Games are wanted with the strongest semi-professional teams, 2nd J. Logan, 614 East Sixth street, South Boston.

GEORGE ALGER GETS GOOD NEW YORK BOUT

George Alger, the Cambridge lightweight, has signed articles for a bout at Brown's Gymnasium in New York on April 5.

Alger does not know who his opponent is to be, but the undefeated Cambridge lightweight is ready for the best of them. Alger fought in Brooklyn last Saturday and made such a favorable impression that he was booked for the New York bout. The Cambridge boxer started training yesterday for this bout, so it is assured that he will be in the best of condition.

No More Team Games for Sox

Stahl Has New Practice Plans

By H. B. SCHULTZ,

Special American Correspondent with the Red Sox

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 19.—The melancholy matinees are gone, and defeats are no more, for today the Red Sox turn over a new leaf. There will be no more games against the Phillies, nor any other team, until the Boston contingent turns its face homeward, two weeks from today. Beginning this morning, Manager Stahl changes the scenery, the new programme calling for a five-noon workout and an afternoon match between the Regulars and Yannigans daily from now on.

Win or lose, the boys are coming into the spotlight for a good long run. The Regulars may beat the Yannigans, and the Yannigans may beat the Regulars, but it's all for the sport of the thing; everybody benefits, and there are no hard feelings.

NUNAMAKER ENDS HOLD OUT.

So Jake Stahl thinks and that's why he refused to stand for a longer series with the Phillies.

"The game yesterday proved a mighty good workout, but it was hardly the wisest thing for us," said the manager today. "Personally, I think our training season is better without such exhibitions until later on, when the team is in better condition.

"We are starting right today with games between our own players. This method is bound to prove more beneficial in the end for the men."

Leslie Nunamaker, the tall catcher, is not getting back to that farm of his, because he has fixed it up with President McAleer, and everybody is happy. "Nuny" has signed his contract, winding up his holdout period, on terms satisfactory to both sides.

"Heinie" Wagner asks a query which is appropriate for the day: "Why is it that the Yannigans so often are able to trounce the Regulars?" And then the answer comes that it is because the Yannies are all anxious to make good, work every minute of play, do their best and exert themselves to win. The old timers, on the other hand, are apt to take things easy, and the result for them is often a lambasting.

How to Beat Yannigans.

Scout Billy Hamilton, who has gone to Marlin Springs to look for material for the Pilgrim ranks, suggested a remedy he used to find effective.

"Tell the Regulars they've got to play until they win," says Hamilton, "and you'll find them going in to get everything in the early stage. It's the best receipt for making them work."

The last game with the Phillies, though it brought no more real gladness than the first, was less of a walkover. True, it was just as one-sided, considering conditions of the Quakers and their eagerness to get the victory, but the Red Sox spoke out in a telling way on a number of occasions.

Witness these home runs in the eighth by "Tris" Speaker and Jake Stahl, which nigh got Lanky Ben Hunt's goat.

Stahl had an "at bone" day for clouting May be! It was the applause he got on the start from Baby Jake. Anyway the doughty manager batted a thousand, getting a single, two two-baggers and flies over the fence for four times up, and being accredited with three runs.

Speaker also was in his element, showing he could come strong in a game the day after his arrival.

New Men Show Up Fast.

Charley Hall, after pitching a good inning, sprung a bone in his arm, which sent him to the bench. But he says the accident may mean that the bone, which has troubled him long, has at last slipped into the right place.

Gardner's homer, which netted three runs in the first, was a feature, as he put the ball over left-field fence, which is an unusual place for a left-handed batsman. "Duffy" Lewis came next with the same sort of a drive.

Two new men—Mart Krug and Hubert Leonard—featured big, the former making a really remarkable showing with the stick and in the fielding. Out of five times up, Krug walloped a two-bagger, two singles, a sacrifice and then, in the end of the ninth, a long skip to center-field fence, which should have been good for several bases, but Haskett nitted it in a wonderful catch.

To say the least, Krug made a fine impression, and President McAleer said he was stuck on the way he went out and did things.

Leonard is going to come fast. "Red" Doolin thinks he is a future star. He has a way of cutting them across the inside corner of the plate that is certain to make him a permanency'ha and his other fine qualities.

BUSY DAYS FOR PIN CHAMPION

Paul Poehler, champion New England candlepin bowler, will begin a hard campaign at Holyoke tomorrow night. Continuing until the following Wednesday he is booked to appear at Chelsea, Gloucester, Springfield and Westfield.

According to Paul, challenges are still coming thick and fast, but he says he will fill as many engagements as possible before the season comes to an end.

Tomorrow night he will go to Holyoke, where he tackles Jim Skinner, the champion of Western Massachusetts, in a twenty-string match. Poehler regards the Holyoke man as an excellent bowler, with plenty of endurance, and is prepared for a hard battle.

Thursday night he will make his way back to Boston, and will roll Harvey Heintz at the Congress Alleys of Chelsea. The following night he will meet Archie Walsh of East Boston in an exhibition match at the Belmont Alleys of Gloucester.

Next Tuesday Poehler and his backer, C. M. Goodnow of Boston will roll at the Young Men's Alleys of Springfield against Art Lamb and George Ryan, considered two of the best bowlers of that city. On the following night he will meet Skinner at Holyoke in the return match of their special match at the Bastia Alleys of Westfield.

The champion has many other matches booked in the near future. He will roll John Christopher within two weeks, and may also team up with Clarence Johns, second prize winner in the AMERICAN contest, and Harvey Heintz and A. Walter Scott at Lynn and Chelsea.

Bowling Prizes Awarded Today.

The winners of traveling bags and medals in the AMERICAN Bowling Champions ship tournament are requested to call at this office today or tomorrow at 3 o'clock. The Bowling Editor will distribute the prizes.

If it is inconvenient for any of the winning bowlers to call they should write at once, giving their names and to what address they desire their prizes sent.

City League Leaders Have Hard Matches.

City League "fans" should witness some of the best matches of the season tomorrow night. Forsyth and Murray & Irwin, which are at present tied for first position, will be pitted against two good teams, and consequently are looked for.

Boylston promises to give the Curruth team a hard tronsing. Curruth has been one of Boylston's favorite dishes in every match this season, and it would not be surprising to see Jack Sheafe's charges walk off.

What Adams Square will do to Murray & Irwin is a puzzling question, but the way George Littlefield's men have been rolling of late it is hard to tell just what they will do.

Custom House League Season Closes Tonight.

The Custom House League rollers will make their final appearance on the alleys for 1912 at the new Boston Alleys tonight. Intense interest is being taken in the fight for second place between the Naval Office and Inward Foreign teams. Fierce pressed indications it looks as though the latter will be the winner.

First place was easily clinched by the Appraisers. From the very start of the season, when the Appraisers set a winning pace it was apparent that they would be easy winners.

Pilgrims Speed Up in Work-Outs

Kling Sets Pace for the Players

By L. R. MURDOCH.

Sporting Editor American.

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 19.—With dry ground under their feet a sunny sky overhead, and the thermometer registering 75 in the shade, the Pilgrims had their second day of good practice today. The squad went to Allen Park again. This place is of no use for regular baseball, but it served the purpose of giving the men batting and throwing practice, which they needed.

They cut loose and showed some speed. The pitchers began curving them yesterday. Weaver, Tyler, Griffith, Brady and Hess letting out some fast ones, and the others following today. Tyler had a sore arm in the evening, but this morning it seemed all right again.

MATTERN TO JOIN SQUAD SOON.

Word was received today that Al Mattern had recovered; had sent for transportation and would be on the scene soon. He is needed to strengthen the veteran of the pitching department. Mattern is counted upon as the old reliable port-sider, although he was decidedly off from last year.

The Nationals believe that Mattern felt the general slump of the team last year, and with new management and new players, he will be in fine form again this Summer.

It is hard to pitch gilt-edged baseball for a losing team.

Both Ward and Kling are genuinely sweet on their team this time. They are enthusiastic over the Pilgrim's prospects since the men have been speeding up here. They seem justified, looking at the season this far ahead. Forecasting baseball prospects on the shwing made by one team in a few days of Spring practice is wildcat prophesying. But it is obvious that the Boston Nationals of 1912 are away ahead of the 1911 team at this time in every respect.

By the end of the month it will be possible to draw a fairly accurate line on the strength of the team by itself and in comparison with the other members of the older league.

Kling Sets the Pace.

Kling is paying most attention to speed just now. The manager wants his men to be gingered up all the time. He sets an example himself. He is active from the time he leaves his hotel until he winds up the day's business. To start a rapid fire work the moment he appears at the park. Kling usually starts a foot race. He and Gandy are natural rivals.

When it rains they take a fall out of each other on the billiard table. They have befriended the rest of the team. The hundred yard championship has narrowed down to these two. They split heats yesterday and will try it again this afternoon.

It seems to be Kling's aim to get his team peppered all along the line. He hasn't succeeded yet, by any means, but the men who went out to the park today are twice as fast as those who played ball on the first day of practice here.

Kling has succeeded in getting his men to the point of expressing eagerness for hard work. Practice yesterday was called for 3 o'clock. At 2:30 more than half the men were at the park, and the rest were loosing it for the field, although cars were at their disposal.

Arrange for Home Trip.

The men went to work the same way today, playing like a bunch of schoolboys at one old cat. The first man on the field grabbed a bat and there was a wild scramble for bats and balls. Within two minutes after they reached the park everybody was playing his head off.

President Ward completed arrangements this afternoon to leave Augusta Thursday, March 28. On that afternoon his team will play the Columbia, S. C., team, and on Friday will stack up against the warriors of the University of South Carolina.

The college boys have been eager for a game ever since the Pilgrims have been here and they will be accommodated.

The team will make a night jump from Columbia, Friday, March 29, dividing at Norfolk, Va., Saturday morning, March 30. One team will play in Norfolk that afternoon, and the other will go over to Newport News, across Hampton Roads.

Weather Forecaster L. D. Emigh today promised the Pilgrims that they would have from 60 to 65 degrees weather henceforth and that it would rain no more than once in the next ten days, for which Vice-President C. James Connolly of the Pilgrims forthwith gave thanks with full form and ceremony.

Kilbane Pays Visit To Boy in Hospital

CLEVELAND, O., March 19.—Featherweight champion Johnny Kilbane paid a visit to Andy Dehel, nine years old, at a local hospital. Andy knew of Kilbane's home-coming. While waiting for the champion with 200,000 others an automobile struck him. He was taken to a hospital badly hurt, begging that he be allowed to stay long enough to see Kilbane.

The champion read of Andy's accident in the morning newspapers.

"If he wants to see me that bad," he said, "he shall see me." He bought flowers and hurried to the hospital. Andy almost cried for joy.

Providence Team Reaches Savannah

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 19.—The Providence Grays arrived here today to start Spring training. The team came in with the City of Atlanta and all hands jumped on ground as soon as possible and many stated that they would rather walk back to Providence than go home by boat. A heavy sea had been running ever since the ship left the Narrows and the players did not enjoy it.

En route here Manager Fred Lake found time between his drive hot coffee to talk a little about the coming season in the International League. He came out flatfooted that he would don the spangled this season and he can read either magic.

"I will don the white uniform at home and the gray when I am on the road, so do a little directing from the side lines as well as the field. I may not be there with the legs but my eyes are as sharp as ever. I will have lots of company too in the spangles for most of the managers of the league will wear them. I might be pleased with the half and half of the league, wearing the monkey uniform on the side lines and occasionally taking a whack at the ball.

"I have a bunch of great ball players to work with this season and you just watch the clean dust we put up for the pennant. I am well supplied in every position and my pitchers are the best in the league."

The Grays will start work tomorrow at a local park and will stay here a couple of weeks.

HARD TIMES

This is Presidential year. If you don't believe it, just read the stories of the enormous crowds that greeted Boston's honored guest, yesterday, everywhere he went.

We generally have "hard times" before a Presidential election. Nobody can explain it. Just happens, that's all. This year may be an exception—and we sincerely hope that it does break the old rule.

But Notice!

Every "hard times" period for the past 20 years has seen the business at our shop take a big jump.

And here is the reason.

In the first place we held our regular trade because they knew that they were getting the best clothes on earth for the price.

In the second place we took over much of the trade of tailors who had been asking $40 to $50 for suits and overcoats—the regular prices for good tailoring at shops where the volume of business is restricted.

Men who have been paying $40 to $50 for custom garments are always surprised and delighted at the fit, style, material and work that we put into our clothes.

So will you be surprised and pleased if you let us build you a suit (or overcoat) this spring.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS; LATEST FINANCIAL NEWS

AMALGAMATED AT NEW HIGH LEVEL TODAY

By W. H. ROSS

STATE STREET, March 19.—Midday—The strength of stock markets yesterday held over today, Boston opening firm and with considerable trading, while in New York the better prospect of a strike being avoided in the anthracite region sent coal roads up at the start. There was a good tone to the active list there as a whole.

Firmness of the copper metal market made more demand for some copper shares. Amalgamated sold at 74¾ this morning, a new high record for the recent upward movement. This stock was very largely bought by arbitrage houses.

Among industrials in the Boston market American Telephone opened unchanged, while Georgia Electric at 108 had advanced 3 points. Before noon the local market showed some price irregularity, but among the coppers Cliuo, North Butte and Butte and Superior were a little higher. East Butte and Hancock were fractionally lower.

Situation in the Steel Market.

Orders for steel products have slackened so much since prices were raised that a number of big producers have quit the market temporarily. There are a number of steel companies who have practically taken business at rates too low for adequate profits just to keep plants running. Manufacturers have more regard for employes than agitators are willing to admit. It is said that almost every steel company will show a decrease in net earnings for the current quarter. In order to pay dividends more money must be obtained for products during the balance of the year.

First quarter figures of the United States Steel Corporation, the Jones & Laughlin, Republic and Pennsylvania Steel companies will be scanned with interest. They will be illuminative of the situation. All of these concerns have business enough to keep their plants running at nearly full capacity, but the men working for them are getting more out of the business than the shareholders are likely to receive. Steel producers are of the opinion that if labor is worthy of its hire, invested capital is worthy of dividends. It is believed that for this month United States Steel corporation orders have averaged about 50,000 tons a day and that deliveries have averaged so far 32,000. This rate indicates that there will be a small decrease in the unfilled tonnage of this concern in its next statement. Steel was the most active stock in New York exchange trading yesterday. There were 94,500 shares sold. The change in price for the day from low to closing was 1¾. It is said that London sold about 10,000 shares in New York. The price of Steel shares has gone up on a basis of large orders for steel products at low rates.

Big Sales of Electrolytic.

The demand for copper metal in Europe is heavy, notwithstanding labor troubles and rumors that reinless between steel Britain and Germany are again beginning to be suppressed. The sales of electrolytic copper in New York yesterday were not only large, but no concessions from 14¾ cents are reported. Not only were substantial orders called from Europe, but American consumers were after supplies. It is said there is a dearth of March copper in the market now, and buyers who have procrastinated are finding it hard to get what they want. The European visible supply of copper on March 13 was 114,422,800 pounds, a decrease in twelve months of 69,737,920. It is said in New York today that the United Metals Selling Agency, which has been a large seller on a 14¾ basis, is now practically out of the market at that figure. The London Statist is warning English manufacturers of the present risk of carrying limited stocks of copper.

The Weakness of Illinois Central.

Illinois Central, which suddenly developed pronounced weakness in the estimation of stock traders, is not going to raise $25,000,000 to pay new security issue, and it is denied that the road is badly off for ready cash. It has earned less of late and had to pay more for operating, but that is true of other Western roads. While Julius Kruttschnitt and other members of the executive board of the Harriman lines say, after a tour of inspection, that business in the West has greatly improved and all prospects point towards prosperity for that vast region, Western railroads, between weather conditions and strikes on some lines, have been having a sorely experience. These will show sizable conditions appear to be conducive that there is going to be an improvement in earnings. The outlook for big crops is fine and ample harvests mean proportionately large return freights. In Wall Street the opinion largely prevails that the decline in Illinois Central is due mostly to the fear of Western shareholders that the dividend rate is going to be reduced. One director of the road says there is nothing in this report, so far as he present is concerned.

Hard Coal Roads Make Gains.

Issues of hard coal roads made gains in New York market at the opening, and on the basis of some reports there is less probability of a strike in the anthracite regions. Reading became one of the most active stocks in the list, advancing 1⅜, to 157⅜, while Lehigh Valley followed with an advance of one point to 168⅝. Other stocks established higher levels at the offset, although some of them inter reacted. The copper shares continued active, with Amalgamated advancing ¾ to 73⅜, in early transactions, while American Smelter moved up ¾, to 77⅝.

A number of the industrials were prominent. Steel common sold ⅜ higher, while the preferred moved up ¼. Buying of Missouri Pacific was again in evidence, a gain of ⅝, being recorded in the first fifteen minutes.

The Erie advanced with the other anthracite roads, the common opening at 37⅝, or ⅝ higher, while the first preferred made a gain of ¾. Although Canadian Pacific was under pressure in the London market, this stock was ⅜ higher here.

The curb was quiet but steady.

American stocks were firm in London yesterday. This afternoon, but favorable earnings did not help Canadian Pacific there and it continued heavy. Coppers showed strength. There was an upward movement in oils and mines. Canals rallied and home rails hardened. De Beers went up ⅜ to 19⅞, while Rio Tintos advanced 6 point to 72½.

In a firm market spot copper was up 2s. 6d. and futures were 1s. 3d. higher.

PARNELL MADE FAMOUS BY JILT

LONDON, March 19.—A hidden romance in the life of Charles Stewart Parnell, the "uncrowned king" of Ireland, has just been made public by John H. Parnell, his brother, in T. P.'s Magazine.

It seems that Parnell was hopelessly in love for years with a rich and beautiful American girl, who finally refused to marry him. This affair changed Parnell's whole life and drove him finally into politics as a "cover" for his broken heart. So here, then, is another contribution made by America to the cause of Home Rule in Ireland.

The romance started in 1871, when Parnell, then visiting his uncle, Charles Stewart, who lived in Paris, and there met a beautiful American heiress.

The nephew and the pretty American girl became engaged, and then she went to Rome they corresponded regularly, a happiness only interrupted by the suitor's brief visit to Rome on his own account. He went back to Avondale. In Wall street, he worked in the sawmill, rode again to the hunt, but "turned a cold shoulder on the girl." Then, all his letters to her were with his first love, Miss W., of Paris."

Another visit to Paris and he returned to Avondale to "prepare it for his coming marriage." He threw himself into the working hard, but also giving cricket and "hunt balls." In the meantime, the girl neglecting his love in the meantime.

Suddenly, some time after his return to Avondale, came a second blow. He received a letter from Miss W., telling him that she and her mother were "coming back to America immediately to their place at Redding," and requesting something to see him or commenting on their engagement.

This treatment caused Parnell profound grief. In his misery he left Avondale, unless, he would not give her up so quickly as that.

Miss Elled suitor followed her to Newport in October and she received him very attentively. Parnell, however, refused to be reunned when one day, as Parnell English everything was ready for the wedding of his marriage, Miss W. suddenly told him she was not going to marry him, making as excuse he was only an Irish gentleman without sufficient money and position. He was a public, and that she could not marry any one without a great public name.

This dumfounded Parnell, who could not tell for certain, except for these final objections, why she had cast him off. After trying his best to persuade her to marry him—beseeching her, and recalling all the happy scenes of the courtship and engagement, and she still refusing, he gave up the heart-breaking attempt.

TAFT SUGGESTS SUMMER OPERA

If President Taft's wish could be gratified, a special season of grand opera would take place in Boston some time during the Summer.

It was at the luncheon given by the Pilgrim Publicity Association that President Taft met Director Russell, who was also a guest, and the meeting proved conclusively that, although immersed in political affairs, the President keeps tabs on every important occurrence in the United States, for the knowledge he displayed about operatic matters in Boston astonished even Director Russell.

"I am glad that the operatic outlook in Boston is so brilliant, both from the artistic and the financial point of view, for as I understand it, subscriptions for seats and to the guarantee fund are coming in very rapidly," said President Taft.

BROOKLINE FIGHT OVER MONUMENT

A contest between old soldiers and their adherents and the younger generation will mark tonight's adjourned town meeting in Brookline. The dispute is over a soldiers' monument.

The Women's Relief Corps, the Charles L. Cluuier Post, G. A. R., and many citizens have joined in the campaign to get out the voters for the meeting. The discussion will be led by Selectman E. M. Bowker, and Harris S. Beau. Mr. Bean is a member of the committee appointed to consider the proposal. While most of the committee reported against the monument and for the tablet in the Town Hall, Mr. Bean put in a vigorous minority report.

IMPORTANT TO PIANO BUYERS

Big Sacrifice Sale Starts Off With a Rush of Eager Buyers. Good Pianos Now from $75 Upwards.

Come Quickly for One of These Bargains

Sunday's paper announced the gigantic Alteration Sale at the Hallet & Davis piano warerooms. And due to the astounding response and appreciation of the callers, as shown by the quick purchases, we are obliged to warn those who contemplate taking advantage of this sale to come at once.

If the response of eager buyers continues throughout the week, all of the instruments will be sold quickly, and we can run the sale but one week, instead of ten days, as originally planned.

Good Pianos $75 to $125

Complete assortments are to be found and buyers for the next few days will have the best selection. The management wishes to particularly announce in regard to used pianos that our repair department are delivering these instruments to the retail floor like new. These pianos were all marked at the lowest possible prices before being cleaned and polished, and overhauled, and they will still be sold at the original price marking, although they are worth far more than was first expected. In fact, comparing them with the new pianos, it would be hard to tell the difference.

Early week buyers were indeed astonished at the low prices on these used pianos. Prices range from $75 to $125 on instruments of choice makes. $10 down and $5 to $6 a month sends one of these to your home. Large selection to choose from.

Finest Pianos Made

Special offering for today and tomorrow—Two beautiful hand-carved oak case Hallet & Davis pianos, original price $450, now actually marked at $325. Eight handsome colonial Conway pianos, regular prices $400 to $450, alteration price $225 to $235. These come in any wood you desire. Brand new pianos, but of discontinued styles. Some of these famous old Boston instruments will find their golden opportunity now. These are but a few of the large selection of new and discontinued style pianos in this sale. Easy terms.

Several player-pianos, 88-note patented—a piano the whole family can play without musical training, at almost half price—$300 and upward.

Space prohibits further details and the large daily sales make it hard for us to mention special styles, as they may be sold before the paper goes to press So, remember our first suggestion—the early buyer is the wise buyer, and today and tomorrow's offerings will astound you, not only at the unusually low prices, but the beautiful tone quality of the pianos. Keen-thinking people need no further detail.

Store Open Evenings

Come tonight and bring the family. Open evenings during this sale, so there is no excuse to put off this one great opportunity to bring music to your home, and certainly the easy terms make it possible for you to get a piano at once.

BOSTON AMERICAN'S DAILY MAGAZINE PAGE

The Unification of the World

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

HUDSON MAXIM, inventor of high explosives and terrible guns, and discoverer of the "science of worry," believes that in a very near time there will be only three countries in the world. The United States of Asia (including Europe), the United States of Africa and the United States of America."

I have a high regard for Mr. Maxim, but I cannot put much faith in his "three-nation world." I think that, like Napoleon, he underestimates the strength of race feeling. The great Corsican wrecked him self on that error. Only at St. Helena, where he had time to think in quiet, did he begin to comprehend why the English, the Germans and the Spaniards would never stay down after he had put them down. Even his genius could not unite Europe.

Asia and Europe united in a single nation! The white and the yellow, separated by a psychologic gulf that has never been spanned, and yet blended under one flag and following one idea! Such a thought is in contradiction to the whole course of history.

Blinded by Modern Wonders

We are apt to be blinded by the brilliancy of modern mechanical triumphs. Because we have brought all parts of the planet into close communication with railroads, telegraphs and steamships; because we see Japanese wearing derby hats and shooting American guns and Chinamen rushing their pigtails into chignons and perceiving the advantages of republican government, we assume that the world is all one now, and that it requires but the waving of a fairy wand to banish forever the differences that have divided men from time immemorial and that are implanted as deep in their nature as is their mothers' milk.

INTELLIGENCE is common to all men. They only need education and opportunity in order that all shall adopt the advantages of modern discoveries in science, government and sociology. In that sense the world IS fast becoming one. But behind all that lie differences of mental constitution that a hundred centuries may not eliminate—if they ever CAN be eliminated.

The unprecedented success of our American experiment in self-government also tends to make us dreamers when we turn our thoughts to the unification of the world. But we lose sight of the unparalleled series of circumstances that have favored us.

We have made one nation of all the best part of North America because, in the first place, this whole country was practically unoccupied when our ancestors landed on its shores, and then, owing to historic causes, the entire land fell under the dominion of a single race, and before other races began to send their sons here in considerable numbers we had become so dominant that they had, perforce, to make themselves one with us.

A Great Achievement

The second cause operating in our favor was geographic in its nature.

East of the Rocky Mountains the whole land is a geographic unity, and, fortunately, before another civilization could grow up west of the mountains the railroads had shot through them and the telegraph lines over them, so that we, alone in the history of the world, have achieved the seeming miracle of leveling a great mountain range as a barrier to common nationality.

But as long as the world stands it will be composed of MANY nations, cultivating many DIFFERENT IDEALS, and they will continue to struggle with one another, to their great mutual advantage, although, in a broad sense, they will be brothers, and will cease to fight one another with dynamite.

The war of the future will be the war of brains, not of bullets.

Work to Be Done

NO. 2—THE READING FARMER

By THOMAS TAPPER

I.

THE Department of Agriculture of the State of New York publishes a sane and healthy circular written by F. H. Hall, of the New York Agricultural Experiment Station. It is called, "What Shall the Farmer Read?" It may be had free on request.

This circular (No. 14) contains about seventeen pages of reading matter, every one of them worth while, whether you want to farm it and raise crops for a living or limit your care of growing plants to two geraniums on the window sill.

The writer begins by removing an impression most of us have about the farmer, as suggested by the farmer's picture, by Millet, and the poem by Edward Markham entitled THE MAN WITH THE HOE. He stands before us in both picture and poem, a thing little better than the beasts; a mere machine to whom Nature does not appeal; a man without desire or ability to learn the secrets of Nature by use of his own mind and the minds of other men.

The farmer must read. He must have two sets of tools—plows, harrows, rakes, hoes and the like—out in the shed, and books, papers and magazines in the house. Whatever experience he may have had, the tools in the shape of books will help him to make better and wiser use of the tools in the shed.

Mr. Hall tells you why a farmer should read, why the farmer's children should read, how to refer about books that are useful in helping you to farm anything. He does not forget books on general information and on culture. And, by the way, CULTURE is the great word in these days. People think it means leisure, plenty of time to do nothing, and flat conversation on new novels.

As a matter of fact, Culture is not that kind of a word. It means to cultivate, to till, to dig, and is the very nature of farming itself.

II.

One of the dreadful features of our present day agricultural communities is the abandoned farm. Do you know why it is abandoned? Why it is left to rot and ruin? Chiefly because it is worn out and starved to death. The land has been worked until there is nothing left in it. In many communities we hear the complaint that the boys will not stay on the farms. No boy should stay on a hungry farm, particularly if he does not know how to feed it and make it rich again.

The Agricultural Department and the colleges are reaching out after that boy and his father, telling the farmer that with a right way of doing it farming can be made to pay. When a small farm is run on what we call in these days a plan of efficiency, every foot of ground studied and cared for, made to grow what it is capable of growing, the boy will not be so ready to run into town and spend his life driving a truck. He will be more likely to realize that a farm is like a business—successful when it is run on business principles.

If you have the "back to nature" bee in your bonnet, read this circular. It will set you straight on what is to be-done when you begin to farm it. If you have the idea that a little planting in the Spring means a lot of money in the Autumn, with a big, long loaf for the rest of the year, it will discourage you. It is right that it should.

But if you realize that you get out of a farm, or a back yard garden, just about what you put in it, you are already in the way of success, in the future farming that pays will be scientific farming, the kind a man does in working hours with plows, harrows, hoes, and so on; and in the other hours through the instruction he gets out of the tools in the house, which are papers, magazines and books.

Do You Know That—

Against So Many Surgical Operations. How Mrs. Bethune and Mrs. Moore Escaped.

Sikeston, Mo.—"For seven years I suffered ... I was in bed for four or five days at a time every month, and so weak I could hardly walk. I cramped and had backache and headache, and was so nervous and weak that I ... and to give up ... or have anoperation in the room. The doctors gave me medicine to ease the pain at those times, and said that I ought to have an operation. I would not listen to that, and when a friend of my husband told him about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for his wife, I was willing to take it. Now I look the picture of health and feel like it, too. I can do my own housework, have my garden, and milk a cow. I can entertain company and enjoy them. I can visit when I choose, and walk as far as any ordinary woman, any day in the month. I wish I could talk to every suffering woman and girl."—Mrs. DEMA BETHUNE, Sikeston, Mo.

Murraysville, Ill.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a bad case of female trouble and it made me a well woman. My health was all broken down, the doctors said I must have an operation, and I was ready to go to the hospital, but dreaded it so that I began taking your Compound. I got along so well that I gave up the doctors and was saved from the operation."—Mrs. CHARLES MOORE, R. R. No. 3, Murraysville, Ill.

Married Life the Third Year

No. 23—Helen's Mother Points Out the Hardships That Confronts a Woman Alone

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

DEAR HELEN:

I am much worried at your [illegible] I hardly know how to advise you. As you know, I have never wanted to interfere in any way between you and your husband or his people. And there are some problems that every wife must work out for herself.

About his mother I hesitate to speak. I can understand your resentment at the letter she wrote Warren, but I am not sure, dear, that you were wise in your attitude toward her the day she came. Whatever she might have said, was it quite polite for you to retaliate as you did?

I know she goaded you into it, and it does seem that you should be free to rent your spare room if you wish. But it couldn't help matters for you to say you didn't think it concerned [illegible] had ever shown had been in evidence.

Of course, she exaggerated when she wrote Warren that you were insolent to her, but, still, as she was calling at your house, I hardly think you should have said anything at that time.

I know you feel you have taken a great deal and have said very little, and I ... people have treated you with more or less discourtesy. But would it have helped any for you to be discourteous, too? At least, you have gotten along for these two years without an open break, and it seems to me it would be better if you could avoid any just now.

After all, your life is not lived with his people. You see them only occasionally. And whatever your plans for the future it will not make them any easier to antagonize his mother.

You write that you feel you cannot go on as things are now. It is your dependence on Warren in becoming more and more intolerable and that you must find some way of making at least part of your own support. Helen, I don't know what to say about this. I have wanted to talk it over with your father, but have hesitated to do so for you know you bitter he already is toward Warren. And I am sure he would insist on your coming home. However, little we have you are always welcome to share it. But you say you will never do that.

And yet I wonder, Helen, if you realize how hard it is for any woman of your training to be self supporting—or even partially so. Even if you were wholly free it would be most difficult, but with Winifred—have you thought of what a handicap her would be? You would never want to be so married from her, and yet that is what almost any work you might take up would mean.

You write that many women whose [illegible] ... [illegible] ... have been no more training for bread-winning than you, support themselves and their children. That is true, and were you WORKING to do it you probably could. But I cannot ever to think of your facing the hardships, anxieties and humiliation that must surely come when a delicate woman who has always been sheltered faces the world alone.

You ask me what Sally Hewitt did after her husband was killed on the railroad. I don't know what she took up at first, but now she is in Chicago working for some fashion publication —doing designing of some kind. But, of course, she always had a knack at drawing—when you have not.

How I wish you had kept up your music, for I feel you have a real talent for that. But I suppose in Boston it would be useless for any one with only a moderate training to try to give lessons. You speak of shorthand and ask if I think you could learn it. that. I know so little about it. Helen, but even if you did learn—is not the pay very small? And are there not many applicants for every position?

And this work would take you out in the business world. You would probably have to be in some lawyer's or broker's office, and I know how hard that would be for you. Don't think I am trying to weaken you if you are convinced that your happiness lies in being independent. But I want you to realize more fully some of the difficulties.

At best don't do anything radical until Warren returns. Perhaps if he is successful in his business deal out West things may be better. A man is always more irritable when he is engaged in any enterprise that is uncertain. It is hard to wait for developments. And I suppose that is what he is having to do. No, dear, if you can, be patient a little longer and try to think the future holds some happier solution than for you to have to work outside your home.

And Mrs. Morrison, your roomer, I hardly know what to advise you. It does seem a little unreasonable that you should not be free to rent the spare room while Warren is away. And yet, on both, I feel a people are so against it, I am not sure that you are wise in keeping her.

After all, it can be only a few weeks until Warren returns, and is it worth going against his wishes to keep her for that short time? Helen, as I grow older I think I grow more dependent. I haven't the courage that I once had. I can see that even in my housework. This spring we are going to have that door cut through from the hall to the dining room. You know you have planned that for several years. But somehow, just to get everything ready for the men seems to me such an effort. And I even dread the housecleaning this week. And the clothes you send me Christmas for a suit—I haven't had it made up yet. Just because I dreaded taking it to the dressmaker and planning it out. I am so afraid she will spoil it that I keep putting it off.

Now, I know all this is just because I am growing old. So perhaps I should not let my fears influence you. You are young, and have most of your life before you. And if you think [illegible] to make some radical change—perhaps you had better make it now.

[illegible] ... sooner. Hewitt, I wish that I was younger, so that you could lean upon me more. But this winter I feel that I have aged a great deal. The rheumatism in my hands is worse, and at times it is all through my arms and shoulder. And this has been a hard Winter on your father, too; he stoops more than I have ever seen him, and he is more feeble than when you were here last year. So you see, dear, we are both getting old; and that is why I so dread to think of you without all the protection of your husband and your home.

Well, dear, I am afraid this is not a very cheerful letter or a very helpful one, and yet one that I felt I should write. I shall be anxious to hear from you. Write me often. If only a few lines. Try to keep well, for, after all, health is the greatest thing. And it will be easier for you to meet any conditions that may come up if you are well and strong.

With much love to you and Winifred,

MOTHER.

Helen read this letter with the feeling that somehow her mother had failed her. She realized now how much she had wanted to tell her. But this letter only showed that she could not. It only made her feel that more than ever she stood [illegible]

Again she read the passage where her mother said she was growing old—that thought of her many determinations which she had never carried out. No wonder Warren scoffed at her assertions of independence. Looking back on the past, few months she realized that she had made one plan after another and had carried out none of them.

There came over her a feeling almost of fatalism—that whenever she tried to assert any vestige of independence, some [illegible] influence always swept her back to the acceptance of conditions as they were.

Was it always to be like this? Was she really the victim of some curious fatality? Or was it only because she had so long been under Warren's domination, tyrannizing will, that it had crushed out any real courage she had ever had?

Up-to-the-Minute Jokes

A story is told of a well-known tenor, to see what she had on, fell out of a window.

Mrs. Boffins—Well, that only goes to show that some women, in trying to follow the fashions, can go too far.

Rough Customer (in restaurant)—Say, this cheese is on the blink. It looks as if it's been used to bait a mouse trap.

Waiter—You have the cheese turned upside down, sir.

Rough Customer—Oh, I beg your pardon. I'll send for the proprietor and have some one to the school to practice up, reprimand him to be more careful.

"Sing 'Revive Us Again,'" shouted a boy in the rear of the car.

Swift & Company's sales of Fresh Beef in Boston for the week ending March 16th, averaged 16 [illegible]

"I understand that our friend Hunter," said Joshley, "is working on a big money-making scheme to remove weeds."

"The idea!" exclaimed Coakley. "I didn't know he took any interest in gardening."

"He doesn't. He's merely laying his plans to capture old Faithlesgirl's pretty widow."

Mrs. Boffins—I see in the paper that a woman, in looking after another woman's children, is called a nurse girl. Why is it?

Mr. Boffins—Because she is not allowed to wear a dress.

I.—THE AUCTION SALE.
The Emperor, having abdicated the throne, his furniture is now offered for sale. Claude and Rosamond are hidden in the ice box and the bureau, and Desmond suspects this, so he bids for the furniture, in the hope of capturing the lovers again.

II.—THE MYSTERIOUS BIDDER.
As Desmond begins bidding, in the expectation of getting Claude and Rosamond into his power, a mysterious voice calls out a higher bid. Also the mysterious bidder says that he wants his identity kept secret. Safety again looms up for our hero and heroine.

III.—A CHECK APPEARS.
As all bids must be accompanied by cash or a check, Desmond hopes the mysterious bidder may yet be foiled. But through the keyhole of the icebox Claude pushes out a check for 46,000 yen, enough to buy the entire furniture of the Emperor's ten palaces.

IV.—THE SEIZURE OF THE GOODS.
Not yet is Claude safe. The fate of Rosamond is still in doubt. The furniture company, from which the stuff had been bought on the instalment plan, has sent a wagon to reclaim its property, and the bureau and icebox are chucked into the van.

V.—INSIDE THE WAGON.
Once in the darkness of the van Claude quickly forces open the door of the icebox and immediately releases Rosamond from her cramped quarters. Again the brave lad is free—more or less—and he is full of hope for eventually getting Rosamond out of China.

VI.—PREPARING A SURPRISE.
"I'm the boy!" cries Desperate Desmond, "and I'll take a ride free." The scoundrel little knows that Claude is now free and driving the wagon to which he is clinging. The hero will now give the villain the surprise of his life. For details see tomorrow's paper.

"If you saw no particular harm in it, why did you not care to speak to your husband when he rang up? he demanded instantly.

"Well," said Peggy, defensively, "one may do perfectly harmless things and not care to tell every one about them."

"And this was one of those perfectly harmless things that you did not care to tell every one, or even your husband about?" asked Sir Robert, with withering sarcasm.

"There was no harm in it," maintained Peggy, with something approaching doggedness.

"So little that you permitted Mr. Collingwood to remain with you for quite a long time!" He shot the words at her like a volley of musketry.

"Not very long."

"Until the message came through from your husband?"

The nervous movements of the fingers that gripped the rail began again. "Yes, I suppose so," the girl replied.

"Now up to that time had he shown any signs of leaving?" persisted her tormentor, relentlessly.

"No, I don't think so." Peggy replied in lowered tones. There was a grieving strained note in her voice.

"What were you doing?"

"We were sitting on the sofa," she said, her eyes down and her voice low. "He—he was smoking, I believe."

Sir Robert leaned toward her, looking like the embodiment of the wrath of Justice in his black gown and white wig.

"Should I be right in saying that during most of that time he was making violent love to you?" he cried dramatically. There was another general sitting up all over the court. Peggy's hands clutched the rail until the bloodless fingers showed white against the dark wood.

"He—he was very fond of me," she stammered.

"Passionately in love with you?" Sir Robert shouted.

"I—I think he was very fond of me," Peggy admitted, with trembling lips, Poor little butterfly! She could not lie and she dared not tell the truth.

Her Hardest Hour

"Have you any doubt that he was passionately in love with you?' demanded Sir Robert.

"He told me so," replied Peggy. She was beginning to writhe physically as well as mentally under the torture.

"I put it to you." Sir Robert charged sternly, "that you knew and had known it for months!"

"I—I only know what he told me."

"And when did he first tell you," he whipped. Sir Robert's affected start of surprise was a masterly bit of acting. He bent an awful frown on the white-faced girl.

"You swear to that? Now, please be careful," he warned her solemnly.

"Yes," replied Peggy, faintly, "that was the first time."

"I suggest to you that he had been making love to you for months" Sir Robert lashed out at her savagely.

"I know—I knew for some months that I—that he was very fond of me," Peggy admitted, in the same faint voice.

"Did your husband know?" Sir Robert instantly demanded.

"Yes—I—I suppose so."

Again Admaston raised his head for a moment and his glance met the hunted eyes of his wife. Sir Robert seemed to swell physically with unutterable scorn.

"Do you suggest, Mrs. Admaston," he demanded, "that your husband allowed you to go away, even in the company of friends, with a man who had been abusing his friendship by making love to his wife?" He paused for a moment and went on in even more scornful tones: "Do you really ask the jury to believe that, Mrs. Admaston?"

"I—I don't think my husband knew how fond he was of me," murmured the girl.

"If he had known, don't you think he would have been very angry to know how you were abused in Paris?"

Peggy bit her lip in a desperate effort to control herself in an all but overpowering desire to scream.

"I—I think perhaps he might not have liked it," she answered with a rush.

"Perhaps!" echoed Sir Robert, with a curl of the lip. "Would any man have liked it? Come, madam, do you think you were treating your husband fairly in encouraging the attentions of this very charming gentleman?

"I—I did not encourage them," declared the girl.

"O—oh!" There was the acme of sarcasm in the drawn-out exclamation. "We shall see. Didn't he make you feel embarrassed to find yourself sitting up in a strange hotel to the small hours of the morning with this man making love to you?" It was more of a denunciation than a question and Peggy drew a hard breath, but did not speak.

"Or had this," went on Sir Robert, brutally, "gone too far by this time to make you feel embarrassed?"

Mr. McArthur sprang up with blazing eyes.

"My Lord, I protest against these insulting suggestions!" he cried, indignantly, as Peggy, wincing as from the blow of a club, covered against the rear rail of the witness box, with her handkerchief to her eyes.

"Sir robert is within his right," said the President, gravely. "He would not ask these questions without good reason."

"Too good reason, My Lord," said Sir Robert, soberly, almost sadly. "My duty is not a pleasant one. Now, Mrs. Admaston, was this the first time you had received Mr. Collingwood when the rest of the household was asleep?"

Peggy clenched her hands and turned with streaming eyes to the court.

"I assure you, my Lord," she cried, piteously, "that I am innocent."

"PEGGY, WINCING AS FROM THE BLOW OF A CLUB, COWERED AGAINST THE RAIL OF THE WITNESS BOX, WITH HER HANDKERCHIEF TO HER EYES."

A rustle and low murmurs ran through the court as Sir John turned a grave, pitying look on the girl's upturned, flower face, now wet with tears.

The Futility of Tears

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

MADAME, persuade me tears are useful?

To wash our mortal cares away,
These eyes shall weep a sudden flood
And stream into a briny bay.

Or, if these orbs are hard and dry
These sobs that rise from (not in rain),
Some star direct me where to buy
One sovereign drop for all my pain.

Were both the golden Indies mine,
I'd give both Indies for a tear.
I'd barter all but what is mine;
Nor shall I think the bargain dear.

But tears, alas! are trifling things,
They rather feed than heal our woe;
From trickling eyes new sorrow springs
As weeds in rainy seasons grow.

The Weaker Sex—Man

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

A MAN'S tongue can spoil all his industry.

No man earns enough wages to support both his family and a saloon, but a surprisingly large number try it.

It is easy to please a man: Find out his hobby, and assume a thirsty knowledge to know about it.

After a man has told you his troubles, you know more about his wife's relatives.

Occasionally there is a man so fond of joining lodges that he is a member of everything in the world but his own family.

Even when a man is praying to be delivered from temptation, he is telling himself it isn't going to hurt to take a look at it.

Many men are like the cow that gives a big bucket of milk, and then kicks it over.

After a man passes seventy, he would rather gossip about wickedness than engage in it. There is, however, some doubt about this time limit. Those more familiar with men place it at ninety.

The average man is such a baby that every time the potatoes are not fried to suit him, he gets a look on his face as if he were playing the star part in "Driven From Home."

The fat men need all the comfort they can get. Every picture of the devil represents him as being very slender.

When two men are life-long friends, each thinks it is due to his forbearance.

Every man makes the fatal mistake of thinking he can fool his wife as easily as he fooled his mother.

The average man gets so much criticism that when a compliment is paid him without "if" or "but" attached, he pinches himself to see if he isn't just now dead.

The early part of a man's life he thinks he is the bird; in later years he is sure he is the worm.

As soon as a man outgrows a foolish notion, a younger man comes along and picks it up.

A Bachelor's Diary

No. 2—Josephine Gives Him Encouragement, But a Rival Makes Him Angry

By MAX.

JANUARY 6—I did not enter this little confessional last night. I knew I did, and had pencil and paper in my hand I would figure out how much the evening cost me, and somehow that seems a contemptible thing for a man to do when he's in love.

There was a taxi for four, grand opera for four, dinner for four, and taxi for four home again, and all I got out of it was a view of Josephine's back hair during two hours of music that was too deep for me, a front view of the ugly cousin's face Josephine placed the homely one near me), and a pair of ridicule from Josephine at the dinner because when she talked of Humperdinck I asked who wrote it. Wagner or Siegfried.

Yes, this evening I am alone with Josephine. I will explain to her that a man who has had to knock his way through thirty doors, and by hard knocks, doesn't know a lot of things he would be glad to have the woman he loves teach him.

I saw Josephine looking prettily at my tie. It was pale pink, and when I bought it I thought how well Josephine would look in one of those low-trimmed house gowns of that color, sitting beside me in her little rocker. What was the matter with it, I wonder? Josephine never looked at me all evening without making me conscious of her disapproval of that tie. I can't ask the other fellows what's different, and a man who hasn't a mother or sisters hasn't any way of finding out a lot of things he should know.

He Is in Raptures

I won't see Josephine tonight. She said she would be too tired to see me. I believe I'll call her up.

* * *

Those stairs represent the time it spent at the telephone. Her mother said she had gone to a dance!

I wonder how much I spent last night, any way.

January 10—That was all right about the dance. Josephine called me up the next morning to explain that she liked me to go to give her cousin a chance to meet her friends and that she THOUGHT OF ME ALL THE TIME.

Dearest Girl in the World, I was so pleased I sent her a box of American Beauty roses, and when I called that evening I wasn't mad at a folded paper expect when I found Dribbles there. She went out with him, but explained to me that it was part of the task laid upon her as an engagement, she had made a month ago, long before she knew I loved her.

Then she let me squeeze her hand, and if that one ef-a Dribbles had not stayed in the parlor a minute longer I know I could have kissed her. He had her company all evening, but she left her heart with me. I know that by the glance she threw at me over Dribbles' shoulder.

She wouldn't let me come up this evening, She said her cousins were going to have company and she couldn't see me alone if I came. I tell you, Old Diary, there is comfort in that; she wants to see me alone! I am going up tomorrow night. She said she would be so glad to have me take her and her cousins to the Flower Show.

"There is such an intimate association between flowers and love, don't you think so?" she said over the telephone.

Yes, I think so, Max! I am getting on, and she said it with the sweetest little caressing notes in her voice. Wish I had been there at the other end of the wire when she said it. Flowers and love! Why, but a sweet little flower-souled girl like Josephine would think of such a thing!

I am glad I am thirty-eight and have waited all these years for a girl like her. I tell you a fellow can appreciate an angel when she comes into his life this way.

I find that tonight's program is special, and that the tickets are three dollars for the best seats. That's pretty steep, but if a man's any sort of a man at all he doesn't count expense when he is in love. I heard Josephine express that sentiment the other evening.

I think I was almost at Dribbles who barges around there so much. She wants to let him know she thinks he is a stingy old skinner, and selfish, and she doesn't like him.

I sent up orchids next morning, and found when I called that evening that Dribbles had sent orchids, too.

January 15—Got a note, Dear Diary. Dribbles was at the Flower Show with another girl, and Josephine was glad of it. I knew, for she never appeared so happy before. She was just bubbling over with good humor and looked at me in a way that made me wild with love for her. Dribbles saw it, too, and I am glad of it.

But for some reason, when we were on the way home one was quiet and half cross, and wouldn't let me hold her hand, though the cousins couldn't see me do it. I think the reason was that she was tired of the festivities the cousins threw on us, and depressed because she never gets to see me alone. Confound those cousins!

BILIOUSNESS, SALLOW SKIN, HEADACHE, SLUGGISH BOWELS—TAKE CASCARETS

You're bilious, you have a throbbing sensation in your head, a bad taste in your mouth, your eyes burn, your skin is yellow, with dark rings under your eyes, your lips are parched. No wonder you feel ugly, mean and ill-tempered. Your system is full of bile not properly passed off, and what you need is a cleaning up inside. Don't continue being a bilious nuisance to yourself and those who love you, and don't resort to harsh physics that irritate and injure. Remember that every disorder of the stomach, liver and intestines can be quickly cured by morning with gentle, thorough Cascarets.

A 10 cent box will keep you and the entire family feeling good for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing occasionally. Children love to take Cascarets, because they taste good and never gripe or sicken.

NEW VOICES IN LA BOHEME

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

"La Boheme" was sung at the opera last night with a new Mimi and a new Rodolfo. There was a fair sized but appreciative audience.

The most interesting feature of the performance was the appearance of Edmond Clement in the tenor role, a part which he only had to have never sung before in Italian.

Clement has not been singing well this year. In the light French roles in which he is considered best his tone has been throaty, and his high notes afflicted with a severe tremolo.

Therefore, it was a surprise to and him better in this great singing part than in anything else he has sung this season. It was evidently a supreme effort on the part of Clement, and he certainly was a successful one.

His tone was clear and mellow, and his high notes ringing full and free from the marring tremolo, save for a very few places. To be sure he did not try such uncalled for stunts as the thrilling high note Caruso delights to take at the end of the first act, but which is not written in the score, but his was an excellent vocal performance.

Histrionically he was an admirable Bohemian, up to all sorts of tricks, sentimental and full hearted at once. His was the conventional Rodolfo in all essentials, but a convincing one.

Alice Zeppelli of the Philadelphia Company appeared as Mimi. Zeppelli was seen in Boston with the Hammerstein Company three years ago but she never sang here such an important part as Mimi.

Zeppelli is an attractive young woman with a good voice despite thinness and a tendency to shrillness. Her Mimi was acceptable but not distinguished enough to attract notice among the horde who strive sing the part here during the last two seasons.

Lily Dereyne appeared again as Musetta. Although she displayed a tendency to get off the pitch, last evening, Mlle. Dereyne is by far the best Musetta we have heard in Boston. Her vivacity and her fine voice are well suited to the part.

The other members of the cast, Polese, Mardones and Delitzi are always admirable, and the chorus singing was excellent. Mr. Goodrich conducted with spirit and good taste.

VOLIVA PREPARING TO BE "ELIJAH III." IN DOWIE'S CITY

CHICAGO, March 19.—Paving the way for announcement of himself as Elijah III., Wilbur Glenn Voliva, successor of Zion City, is holding daily and nightly conferences with his "elect." "No man knoweth what my life is," said Voliva. "Even Elijah III. does not know when I will deliver the message. But I will tell you on a Sunday." Followers of Voliva said he would go John Alexander Dowie, who called himself Elijah II., one better by announcing himself as the "Messiah." Voliva, however, who is to herald the second coming of Christ.

Get Ready for the Panama Canal, Boston and New England's Opportunity

GREAT BRITAIN, through her subsidized steamship lines, is improving the port facilities at Jamaica, and seeking docks at Seattle, Portland, San Francisco and San Diego, in anticipation of the opening of the Panama Canal.

The Hamburg-American Steamship Company—which is Germany—has added $16,500,000 to its capital to build new liners for use in the Panama Canal service, and also is locating docks along the Pacific coast.

The Government of Denmark is preparing to establish a coaling station in the Danish West Indies for the accommodation of its merchant ships which will use the Panama Canal.

Japan has embarked upon a comprehensive plan for the encouragement of ships carrying the flag of Nippon through the great waterway.

Other nations are similarly amove to be ready for the mighty forward impetus which will be given to the commerce of the world by the union of the two oceans at Panama.

What is the United States doing to take advantage of the opportunities which will be created through its investment of $400,000,000 in the canal—opportunities which its great trade rivals are prepared to pounce down upon at the firing of the signal gun on January 1, 1915?

Has the canal been dug to glorify the commercial prestige of England, France, Italy, Germany, to make easy the final conquest of the world's markets by our commercial rivals? That PITIFUL 8 PER CENT. of the world's carrying trade which we have saved from the wreck—is it, too, to be swallowed up in the rush of waters when the last barrier between the two oceans has been removed?

THE DUTY OF THE HOUR IS TO GET READY FOR THE PANAMA CANAL.

The flag of the United States has disappeared from the seas. From that glorious period of 1800, when ships flying the Stars and Stripes carried all but 10 PER CENT. of the commerce of the world, our merchant marine has dwindled until but a scant 8 PER CENT. is now carried in American bottoms.

With the opening of the canal there will be a forward movement in the world's commerce which will send the totals upward by leaps and bounds. The entire western coast of South America—a region rich beyond computation in natural resources—will be thrown open for the first time to development and exploitation. Fresh impetus will be given to the east coast as well, while all of Central America will be laid under tribute by the enchanter's wand of commerce.

The plains of South America swarm with sheep and cattle, while her cultivated fields are awave with bumper crops of grains. Her mines teem with precious metals. Capital is being poured into Brazil, Argentina, Chile, Paraguay, Uruguay and Peru. Brazil's foreign commerce totals $485,000,000 per year, Argentina's $700,000,000, Chile's $200,000,000, Peru's $55,000,000.

The day is already in sight when, under our inert and supine policy toward a national merchant marine, we shall be paying out annually in ship charges to our competitors a sum equal to all that it has cost us to dig the Panama Canal. And the canal, meanwhile, will be in operation further to increase the advantage over us enjoyed by the nations which are alive to the situation.

It is a condition to which the AMERICAN earnestly invites the attention of Congress. For some inexplicable reason the people of the United States have utterly failed to grasp the opportunities that lie at their doors. National ignorance of Latin America and its possibilities and potentialities is dense almost to the point of hopelessness. Imaginations which are fired by a paltry loan of $5,000,000 to China lie dormant in face of the certainty of $500,000,000 of trade directly to the south of us.

Through what influences this indifference, this lethargy, has been brought about matters little in the gravity of the situation which confronts us.

It is time for CONGRESS, FOR THE NATION, FOR THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES, TO WAKE UP.

The AMERICAN insists that Congress must apply itself immediately to the task. Do not let the opportunity slip by because of inability to agree upon petty details.

Get ready for the Panama Canal!

DO SOMETHING!

Boston, Massachusetts and all New England, must have their share in the great commercial development that will follow the opening of the Panama Canal.

The recommendation of our Port Directors now pending before the Legislature, that twenty-five million dollars be appropriated for the immediate development of our port, and that the Port Directors be authorized to guarantee the bonds of some new transportation lines, is calculated to put us in the vanguard in this coming great rush for new business on the Pacific Ocean.

If the members of the Legislature will only take a large view of this situation; if they will take the view of genius, Boston can return to its own.

A century ago, when American ships carried all but 10 per cent. of the world's trade, Boston was the great maritime port of the United States.

The same waters today roll in and out of her harbor. She has lost her commercial prestige only because the hopeful, imaginative, confident young men went West and left with us the cautious, timid, unimaginative, hard-headed.

Our brains and our capital built up the West. It is time for us now to turn our attention to rehabilitating ourselves.

Let us get behind new steamship lines which will bring new trade to Boston from the Pacific. Let us get behind new railroad lines which will bring us new trade from the great Canadian Northwest.

Let us make haste to prepare ourselves to receive this increased traffic by developing our terminal facilities.

LAWRENCE EDITORIAL BEST.

Editor AMERICAN:

Your editorial in the AMERICAN about the strike in Lawrence is the best and most honest that has appeared in any newspaper of general circulation.

A newspaper that cannot be bought, bribed or corrupted by the capitalists in their mad rush for money is to be congratulated by all justice-loving people.

Here's hoping your power for good will ever increase until justice is ours and peace and contentment reign supreme.

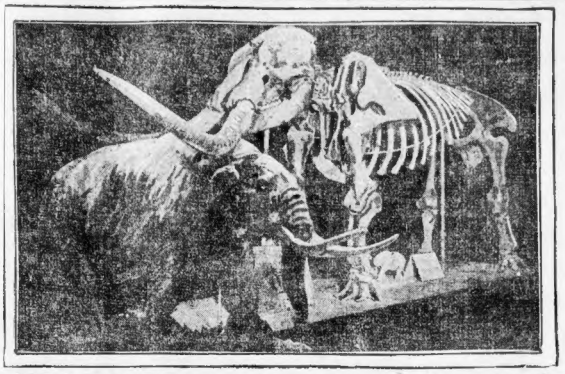
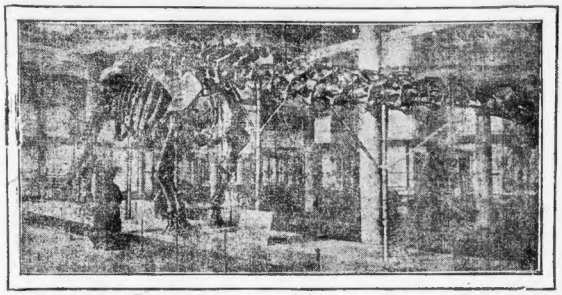
Mastodon Ruled Until Brain Development Began

By GARRETT P. SERVISS



The skeleton in the picture is that of a mastodon now in the Museum of Natural History, New York. These bones were found on a farm near Newburgh, N. Y. The insert depicts the mastodon as it was in real life.



This picture represents the skeleton of a brontosaurus, also in the New York Natural History Museum. These gigantic creatures were often eighty feet long. The specimen shown in the picture was found in Wyoming.

Copyright, 1912, by American-Journal Examiner

I AM reminded by an article and some suggestive pictures in The World Today of the time when America was a land of elephants. We may learn something useful as we look at these big Americans of a hundred thousand years or so ago. They lived in what geologists call the Quarternary era, and their skeletons in museums are labelled "Mastodon Americanus." But they were, to all intents and purposes, simply gigantic elephants, and they ranged in undisputed mastery from Nova Scotia and Canada to Mississippi and Texas. Contemporary with them were two species of true elephants, and a bison whose great horns spread to a width of ten feet between the tips.

Skeleton Eleven Feet High

In the Museum of of Natural History in New York you may see the skeleton of one of these mastodons, which was dug out of an ancient swamp on Newburgh-on-the-Hudson. It is eleven feet high, seventeen feet long, and has curved tusks twelve feet in length, which, to give them a solid hold, were buried in sockets more than two feet deep in the mighty skull.

When this animal was clothed with its flesh, it is believed to have been thirteen feet tall and twenty-five feet long from tail to tip of tusks. There are still more colossal skeletons of beasts of the past in the museum, but they belonged to an earlier epoch, and when the mastodon lived he was the biggest animal on the American continent.

This huge creature was the biggest in everything except the one really important thing—brains. Like some men, he had an enormous, bony skull, the skull of a fighter and bully, with comparatively little room in it for that mysterious, convoluted substance full of dreaming cells, which is the organ of thought. The mastodon was a mammal. A mammal, says the dictionary, is "an animal which suckles its young." That is precisely one of the physiological characteristics of the animal known as man. So the huge mastodon is, in a certain sense, in our line of descent.

Preceded Human Mother

The mastodon mother preceded the human mother in nourishing her child. We have found no better way yet for that essential process. But by virtue of the brain, which nature proceeded to develop in our species as she has never developed it in any other, we have risen out of the world of simple brute force, which the mastodon typified, into the world of thought, imagination, poetry, science and brotherly sympathy—the advantage of which many of our kind do not half appreciate.

The skeleton of the mighty mastodon, preserved for a thousand centuries—which shows how excellent was his digestion and how solidly his bones were built—is a lesson for all who go to look at it. His kind has disappeared from the world of the living. His reign in America has ceased, because he was too big a mass of brute force for the better age that dawned after him.

Physiologists are now telling us that these great animals of the past have gone into extinction for the reason that their evolution lay in the wrong direction. As soon as brain power became the master force in the world, these creatures, with their tons of flesh and bone, and their twelve-foot scimitars of ivory, found themselves out of date. The struggle for existence took another form, in which muscular power gave place to mental cunning.

Strength His Power

The mastodon's supremacy depended upon the strength of his colossal limbs, jaws and tusks. It is only very foolish persons who think that any supremacy can now be obtained by similar means. The time is coming when the skeleton of a steel "dreadnought" will speak as emphatically of an age that is past as does the skeleton of the mastodon today.

Failure to Provide Against Want in Old Age as Dishonest as Purse Stealing

Suicide or Misery Awaits Those Who Sport with Disaster by Spending All They Have Seeking Pleasure or Satisfying Their Vanity

By DOROTHY DIX

THE other day a man committed suicide because he had lost his job, he was out of money, and had passed that dead line in life after which a man finds it practically impossible to get a good new situation in business.

A sad case, truly, but in this particular incident the pathos lies in the fact that the tragedy was wholly unnecessary, and that the man brought his misfortunes on his own head by his own lack of providence.

For this man was not one of those piteous ones who are forced to work for a little wage, and who, strive as they may, can never do more than keep the wolf a few inches away from their door.

He had been for many years a traveling salesman for a big concern, and had drawn a large salary, enough, if he had used even reasonable economy, to have provided luxuriously for his old age, and to have made him independent of employers.

Instead of looking out, however, for a rainy day he and his wife had occupied an expensive apartment in a fashionable street; they dressed handsomely; they entertained lavishly, and indulged themselves in every amusement they fancied. They lived up to the last cent of their income, and when the income suddenly stopped, they found themselves paupers, and were plunged in such despair that the man killed himself rather than endure it.

Suicide a Warning

I wonder how many hundreds of thousands of people who read the newspaper account of this suicide saw in it the handwriting on the wall for themselves, and who will be warned by it? How many other married couples are spending every cent they make, and who would be left in a similar plight as this man and his wife were, if some Saturday night the husband should get the blue envelope that told him that his services were no longer needed?

It is appalling to think of the number of people who sport with such disaster for the sake of gratifying their vanity, or their love of pleasure. The woman likes clothes and the man loves drink; they both love the theatre, and they want to go with people who are better off than they are, and so they live up to the last cent of their income and generally a little beyond it. They shut their eyes to the future. They refuse to consider the hazards of business. They ignore the certainty of age and sickness.

Crash Sure to Come

But the catastrophe of life come to them, as they come to others, and because they have not had the prudence and the foresight to prepare for them, they are annihilated. The improvident always flatter themselves that they are the darlings of the gods, and that some miracle will be worked by which they will be preserved from misfortune, but it never happens. They reap as they sow, and they go down into the deepest slough of poverty and dependence.

I confess that I have scant sympathy for the wasters and the spenders who come to want through their own extravagance. It seems to me nothing short of dishonesty for people not to provide for their old age, or for sickness, or for lack of employment, since if they are not able to supply their own needs somebody else has to do it for them.

Old age is not an accident that may or may not befall one. It is a certainty. Illness is not a chance. It is also a sure thing. No man is so stupid as not to know that in this day of strenuous competition every year puts an added handicap upon him and increases his chances of losing his job. Also he knows that employers, justly or unjustly, have fixed a definite age limit for employes, and that after a man has crossed that fatal boundary the days of fat salaries are over for him, and he is lucky if he is not turned out like an old work horse to starve.

Old age, sickness, the uncertainty of being able to get a new situation should be lose the old one after he is fifty-five or sixty, these are the facts that confront every man who works on a salary. One would think that they were grim enough to make the most brainless idiot on earth stop and ask himself what is to become of him if he does not lay up something in the Summer time of his life for that Winter that is bound to come to him, as it does to every other human being.

But there are multitudes of men that go blithely along, spending every cent that they make, and then when disaster overtakes them somebody else has to support them and theirs. We are forever being called upon to chip in and bury some good fellow who should have a stack of government bonds, but who has died without a penny to his name, or to contribute to the support of his widow who has been accustomed to spend ten thousand a year and is left without ten cents; or to pay for the hospital expenses of some man whose cigars have cost half as much as our living, or to take care of a bunch of poor relatives who have lived up to a fortune.

These people, who could have provided for themselves if they hadn't been too self-indulgent to do so, are just as much robbers as if they put their hands in our pockets and stole our purses. They have no right to our hard earned money, the fruit of our labor and self denial, and instead of regarding them with pity they should be held up as subjects of scorn and contempt.

Depends on Savings

The man and woman who are living up to every cent of their income do well to consider this case of the man who committed suicide because he had spent everything he made as he went along and had nothing with which to face the rainy day. Their hour of misfortune will also come, and then their fate will depend on whether they have some money in the bank or not.

The difference between a happy, independent old age, or one of miserable, sycophantic hanging on to others and an acceptance of grudgingly given alms, depends on how much you have saved out of your income.

The Hurdy-Gurdy

By PERCY SHAW

I AM sitting at my window,
And as far as I can see
There are roof tops without number,
But there's neither grass nor tree;
Not a robin flaunts his presence—
Yet I know that Spring is here,
For the hurdy-gurdy's music
Comes a-calling to my ear.

Suddenly the air grows balmy
And my eyes begin to gaze
On a certain primrose pathway
Of the long-forgotten days.
Hatless, Nell and I are walking;
I can see her cheeks aglow,
As we lived the joys of Springtime
In the fleeting long ago.

All about the birds were singing,
Hill and field were velvet green;
Fled the tumbling brook a-laughing
Where the sunlight lit the scene.
Side by side we went unspeaking,
And the words I meant to say,
Somehow they were never uttered
On that strangely happy day.

When I'm sitting at my window,
Just as now, it seems to me
That the hurdy-gurdy's music
Rolls the dusty curtains free;
Once again the birds are singing,
As we roam the primrose way,
And I look at Nell and falter
In that now remembered May.
